Major E. B. Cole Dead From His Wounds

Boston Officer Proved His Heroism in Terrific Fire During Charge

Kaiser Ousts Kuehlmann

Major Edward Ball Cole, who commanded the First Battalion, 6th Marine Corps, and his family. The orphaned children are Charles H. Cole, now 10 years of age, and his eight-year-old brother, Edward B. Cole, Jr. Mrs. Cole was Miss Mary Welsh of Philadelphia. The family has just been notified of their bereavement through the father's gallantry in action.

Two little Brookline boys will grow to manhood with the knowledge that their soldier-father died a hero from wounds received in gallant action.

The boys are ten-year-old Charles H. Cole and his eight-year-old brother, Edward Ball Cole, Jr.

They are the sons of Major Edward Ball Cole, commanding the First Battalion of the Sixth United States Marine Corps.

The home at No. 22 Strathmore road, in Brookline, where the two lads live with their mother, formerly Miss Mary Welsh of Philadelphia, had learned through war dispatches of the heroic manner in which Major Cole led his battalion to an attack on the Huns in Belleau wood, near the Marne River on June 11.

Major Cole, previous to the attack, had captured a half-dozen Hun stragglers.

ADVANCED IN HEAVY FIRE.

Then came the charge of the Marines. Bert Ford, International News Service correspondent, told in his personal account of the action how the Americans advanced through heavy artillery fire, stormed a hill and thrust the Germans from the northern horn of the wood.

Later came the announcement, in a daily casualty list, that Major Cole had been severely wounded. He succumbed to his wounds on June 18. Word of his death has just been received by his mother, Mrs. Charles H. Cole of Brookline, in a cablegram from the major's elder brother, Brigadier-General Charles H. Cole of the 53d Infantry Brigade.

"Eddie" Cole, as his Brookline and Boston friends called him, was a "born soldier." He was a native of South Boston. After his graduation from Harvard in 1903 he turned to military life. He selected the Marine Corps. He was commissioned a lieutenant, served at many posts, was commissioned captain in February, 1914, and as major last June. He sailed for France with his battalion last December.

WAS MACHINE GUN EXPERT.

He was an expert on machine gunnery. At Pensacola, Fla., where he had been stationed, he was appointed a member of the National Machine Gun Board, which was created to adopt the gun to be used by American troops.

SUFFRAGE DEBATE IN SENATE

Washington, June 27.—Before crowded galleries, filled largely by women, the Senate this afternoon voted almost unanimously to take up the Susan B. Anthony resolution submitting a constitutional amendment for nationwide women's suffrage to the States for ratification.

The practical unanimity with which the Senate agreed to consider the measure indicated that it would come to a final vote without long debate. Both sides were confident and each was still claiming victory when the Senate convened.

Indicative of the interest in the vote, eighty-one Senators were on hand to answer to their names when the roll was called. The presence of so many women in the galleries brought Senators out in their most

ANGERED BY PEACE SPEECH

By International News Service.

London, June 27.—The Kaiser was furious when he learned of Foreign Minister Von Kuehlmann's speech to the Reichstag and immediately sent him a severe telegram, said a Central News dispatch from Amsterdam today.

German politics has been boiling since the speeches of the chancellor and the German foreign secretary have become public.

The Amsterdam correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph states that the Kaiser has given his consent to Dr. Von Kuehlmann's resignation as foreign secretary, since he has incurred the enmity of General Von Ludendorff.

The Deutsche Zeitung prints warm comment on Von Kuehlmann's speech, calling him a "defeatist, a traitor and an ally of the international Socialists."

The German political situation has been further enlivened by a strong attack against the latest speech of the Kaiser by Dr. Haase, an independent Socialist leader in the Reichstag. He charged Austria with starting the war, with Germany's approval, and ridiculed Von Kuehlmann's statement that mutual confidence is necessary to peace negotiations.

"There is no paragraph of the Brest Litovsk peace pact that has not been broken," declared Dr. Haase. "Turkey's action in invading the Caucasus was unlawful and attempts to annex Esthonia and Livonia were contrary to the treaty."

Dr. Haase then attacked the military party, saying:

"The militarists are supreme. Hertling and Von Kuehlmann are merely lay leaves in order that the military party leaders shall not show themselves in their entire nakedness. Why not create a clean government and make the chancellor the real governor of the State instead of Von Ludendorff?"

Another Exchange Telegraph dispatch quoted the Vorwaerts (the organ of the German Socialist party) as saying:

"We Socialists want a government that will adhere to Von Kuehlmann's speech. What we are doomed to get, however, is another Michaelis, perhaps."

Michaelis was a former German chancellor.

KILLEEN IS SENTENCED TO SIX-MONTH TERM

John M. Killeen, "Royal Rooter," was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction today by Chief Justice Bolster in Municipal Court. Killeen was charged with representing himself as an attorney and soliciting legal business for lawyers. The case against Killeen was prosecuted by Henry F. Hurlburt, who asked the court to impose a prison sentence in order to clear the names of the bar and the courts of any connection with illegal business alleged to have been carried on in courthouse corridors.

Few Divisions Here Have More Than 200 Men, so 246 Was Blank in Many Cases

Although the first draft number drawn in Washington today was 246, the Greater Boston men to be drawn first with but few exceptions had the number 154.

No. 154 was drawn eighth. As the majority of Greater Boston districts has registered between 100 and 200 men, it was the first number applicable to the men of such districts.

740,000 Men Are Called to Colors by the Second Draft; 246 First Number

Washington, June 27.—America's second draft lottery to fill the gaps in the various classes in the selective army began at 9:36 today. The first number drawn was 246, taken from the big bowl by Secretary of War Baker. All holding it take their places at the bottom of the existing lists.

It is estimated that 740,000 men were called by today's drawing.

Senator Chamberlain, as chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, drew the second number, 1,168. Because of its high position it was undoubtedly a blank in every district. In rapid succession thereafter numbers were drawn by the invited celebrities as follows:

WARREN DRAWS SIX.

Senator Warren drew No. 818.
Representative Dent drew No. 1091.
Representative Kahn drew No. 479.
General March drew No. 469.
General Crowder drew No. 492.
Colonel Warren drew No. 154.
Colonel Easby-Smith drew No. 529.
Major Kramer drew No. 355.

The first number in the regular drawing was by Miss Wilhelmina Wellborn, who drew No. 540.

Miss Wellborn, better known as "Major Billy," drew all of the remaining 1200 capsules containing the numbers, from the great glass globe which also was used at the initial drawing which created the National Army. Miss Wellborn is head of the information bureau of the Provost Marshal General's office and is considered one of the best informed persons on the selective service act in the Crowder organization.

In the initial draft, 10,500 numbers were drawn. Today only 1,200 were recorded and this was believed to be nearly two times as many as would be needed. But General Crowder wanted to be on the safe side and was taking no chances.

Today's procedure was simple. In each of the 4,557 districts in the country the men who became of age—twenty-one—since June 5, the date of the selective service act, have been numbered by their district boards serially from No. 1 to the highest number recorded at the recent registration.

Today's numbers affected each district. As fast as a number was drawn and examined by officers in attendance it was called out to tellers, who immediately recorded it on a blackboard erected beyond the table on which the bowl containing the numbers rested.

As each number was recorded it automatically fixed the position of each man holding a corresponding registered number in each of the 4,557 districts in the nation.

Where the number drawn was higher than the number in any of the districts, the local boards simply disregard it in compiling their lists. For instance, if 400 was drawn, it would affect only districts where there were 400 men or over. The numbers were recorded serially and boards made up their lists from all that affected their registrants.

The order in which a registered number was drawn determined the place of the individual holding that number in the class to which he is transferred by his questionnaire, which he must immediately fill out. No man drawn today, however, will be called to service until the original registrants in his class, who were drawn last year, have been disposed of by the local boards.

The questionnaires are being mailed out by the local boards, the first 25 per cent. having been placed in the mails yesterday. Returns must be made by the registrant within seven days after the receipt of the questionnaire.

Although 9:36 was the hour set for drawing of the first number, there was the usual delay, owing to the tardiness of notables who had been invited to be present.

Grand Army Veterans Give Rousing Sendoff to Lynn Draftees

Members of the G. A. R. firemen, State Guardsmen, City Councillors and members of the Exemption Board were in a farewell parade, escorting 121 Lynn draftees, bound for Camp Dix, to the railroad station today.

Previously exercises had been held at City Hall, at which an address was made by Mayor Walter H. Creamer, presenting to each man a sweater, the gift of the Whiting School Red Cross unit, made up of children under fourteen years old. The city gave each man twenty cigars, a box of lunch and a supply of tobacco.

"Our Country's Call," composed by Edgar M. Breed, principal of the Breed School, was sung.

Before they left for City Hall the drafted men of Division 3, West Lynn, witnessed a flag drill by school children and listened to an address by City Councillor Frank J. Hamlin.

Kansas Aviator Downs Fifth Enemy, Becomes Newest American Ace

By NEWTON C. PARKE.

With the American Army in France, June 26 (Night).—During lively encounters on the Woevre plain American artillery scored a direct hit upon a German ammunition dump, setting it on fire.

Major Harold E. Hartley of Saskatoon, Kas., is the latest airman to become an ace. He downed his fifth machine yesterday. His four previous victories were gained while fighting with the Royal Flying Corps.

It is now established that the American aviator who lost his way on Monday and landed in Switzerland is Lieutenant James Ashenden of Chicago. He has been interned.

Paris, June 27.—Artillery activity developed south of the Aisne River during the night, in the sector of Couvres, and in the Vosges Mountains, the War Office announced today. The French made three raids, capturing prisoners.

"Major Billy," a Slip of a Girl, Oils the Draft Wheels

By International News Service.

Washington, June 27.—A slip of a girl played an important part in the nation's second big draft lottery today. She is Miss Wilhelmina Wellborn, otherwise known in General Crowder's office as "Major Billy." Miss Wellborn drew the remaining numbers after the half-dozen or so high government and army officials had drawn the first few.

"Major Billy's" fame rests on the fact that she is generally recognized as the best informed person in Washington on the draft system. Anxious mothers write to find out when their sons will be called in the draft. Indulgent fathers want to know why their sons, who work six days a week, have been drafted while "that boy across the street still lounges in the corner poolroom."

2,000 ARRESTS IN SLACKER HUNT

Throughout the State today government officials, agents of the Department of Justice and police are continuing the roundup of young men who fail to show their registration and classification cards.

More than 1,000 and probably close to 2,000 arrests were made in Massachusetts of men of draft age who were unable to satisfy the authorities that they had registered for military service.

Names of employes who did not report for work at factories yesterday, and therefore escaped the dragnet spread by police and Department of Justice officials, will be given to the police by foremen for investigation.

The process generally followed by the police was to stand beside foremen as the men reported for work and to ask for their cards as they did so.

All the absentees will be sought out if they do not return, and already the police of different sections have brought in many additional men.

The round-up of slackers has just started. The largest factories and mercantile establishments only have been taken care of. The round-up will continue indefinitely. Just as long as slackers remain free they will be sought out.

There were no end of excuses offered by the men arrested. Some claimed they were still under age and had falsified their ages in order to secure their positions, while others had lost their cards.

Michael J. Murphy, living on Bowdoin street, West End, is alleged to have registered as James Flynn. He was held under substantial bail, as were all others who took liberties with the draft act.

The roundup attracted much attention, particularly at the entrance to the Federal Building and at No. 45 Milk street, where Superintendent Kelleher of the Bureau of Investigation undertook the examination of every man arrested.

There was a long line at the door and the corridors were almost abandoned to the motley gathering which represented about every known nationality. Practically all of them were in their working clothes.

Lack of space at No. 45 Milk street forced a general shifting back to the Federal Building, where about 100 were placed in the United States District courtroom awaiting examination. Later when they were found to have apparently violated the law they were taken before United States Commissioner Hayes and following their arraignment they were in most cases held in $500 bail to await the action of the court.

Over 100 young men found without draft registration cards on Cambridge and Somerville were taken from the East Cambridge Jail to the Federal Building today. A big five-ton motor truck made several trips conveying the men. The men were taken to the Department of Justice, where they were examined.

HOMER VICTIM OF MRS. WILBUR'S JEALOUSY, DECLARES LAWYER

DISPUTES WIDOW'S STORY

Hughes Says She Told Just Enough to Make It Appear She Was Telling the Truth

"Mrs. Wilbur was jealous of Dr. Homer," declared Attorney John T. Hughes, counsel for the doctor, in his argument today before Judge Lawton and a jury in the Suffolk Superior Court, when Dr. Homer has been on trial since June 11 on the charge of stealing $2,500 in jewels from Mrs. Wilbur.

In opening his argument Hughes declared that Dr. Homer had established a lucrative practice in Los Angeles, where he had offices fitted up at a cost of $12,000 or more, and employed three registered dentists and two laboratory men.

"Is it reasonable to suppose," he asked the jury, "that he would have thrown away his reputation and chances for the sake of a few thousand dollars?"

SAYS HOMER TOLD ALL.

He said that at his advice Dr. Homer had revealed all his associations with Mrs. Wilbur. It is unpleasant, he said, to blacken a woman's reputation, but life imprisonment, the maximum penalty for a conviction of the crime with which the doctor is charged, made it necessary to tell the whole story.

He said that Mrs. Wilbur had admitted just enough to make it appear that she was telling the truth, but charged that her relations with Homer were voluntary, not the result of coercion.

"Mrs. Wilbur claims that the robbery took place on May 11 and that she reported it to the Back Bay police station the following day," he said. "Yet it was not for forty-one days that any complaint was made against Dr. Homer."

"FACE GREEN WITH JEALOUSY."

"After the alleged robbery she talked with Dr. Homer frequently on the telephone and sent telegrams to him. On June 22 Dr. Homer was in a room in Boston with Mrs. Wilbur. That night he returned to New York and on June 23 Mrs. Wilbur made the complaint on which Dr. Homer was arrested.

"When he was arrested Mrs. Wilbur, her face green with jealousy, told Dr. Homer to get Mrs. Jadkins a bail bond out. Mrs. Wilbur was jealous of Dr. Homer. She wanted to get him back into her clutches and to make him cease paying attentions to other women.

He closed by urging the jury not to convict Dr. Homer of robbery because he had been guilty of immoral conduct.

SUFFRAGE DEBATE BEGINS IN SENATE

resplendent toggery. Nearly all were their 'Sunday-go-to-meetin'" clothes.

POINTS TO THE WEST.

The debate was opened by Senator Poindexter of Washington. He declared that many of the excellent policies of the Western States would not have been enacted without woman suffrage. The "hard-headed business men" at first opposed it, but now it has met with universal approval in the West.

"Suffrage has not altered the nature of women, as it was predicted," Poindexter continued. "It has given them power and with it a new dignity. It has not been the horror it was pictured. Our polling places were not decent places before women voted, but they have become more wholesome since."

HECKLED BL "ANTIS."

Senator Thompson of Kansas was the next to take the pro-suffrage argument. He pointed out that both parties had endorsed the Federal amendment, but he was not allowed to establish this point without much backfiring from the anti-senators.

"And if you do not pass it today I predict there will be an indorsement of it in both platforms in 1920," he added. "How can Senators stand against votes for women and yet expect women to give them their votes? I bid fake them unless they commit an act of political fally."

WILL TEACH HOW TO GIVE A SHORT TALK

Woolbert, head of the staff of instructors of public speaking at the Illinois University, will have charge of this branch of the public speaking course at the Harvard Summer school. He will instruct two afternoons a week for an hour and a half each day.

SCENE OF AMERICANS' BRILLIANT VICTORY OVER HUNS

General Pershing's men, in a brilliant night attack, have cleared the last German machine gun nests out of Belleau Wood, north of the Marne. In spots it was a case of man to man, with cold steel. A 13-hour bombardment by American artillery prepared the way for the attack and prevented the enemy from filling the wood with gas. The Americans took more than 250 prisoners in the successful engagement, and inflicted severe losses on the enemy. In this sector Pershing's troops have been fighting almost constantly since June 1.

See Poor Outlook for Austrians in Another Drive Against Italy

By International News Service.

Washington, June 27.—"It will be difficult for the Austrians to undertake another offensive against Italy in grand style by themselves.

This message was received at the Italian embassy this afternoon in an official cablegram from Rome, which confirms the decimation of Austrian divisions in the recent offensive. According to Italian headquarters the enemy's losses from June 15 to June 26 totaled sixteen divisions, or 300,000 men.

The cablegram reports Austrian claims of heavy Italian losses as "absurd."

Kerensky, Back as Though from the Dead, Startles London

By International News Service.

London, June 27.—It was a night so wondrous and uncanny that those who saw it have not yet recovered; mos tof them thought, and still think, they saw a ghost; that gaunt, black-garbed stranger with the hollow-cheeked ghastly pale face and flaming black eyes rising from his chair in the background on the Speaker's tribune at the British labor conference, slowly stepping forward and bowing with a winsome grace as the chairman spoke the name:

"Alexander F. Kerensky!"

It was a moment in which the genius of a Shakespeare or a Poe would have revelled when, after the hush of amazement, doubt and curiosity among that vast assemblage, one of the most dramatic figures the world war has produced re-entered the arena of the world conflict and announced in fiery words that Russia had only begun to fight.

Of his own past, past and future, he said nothing. What he had lived through since the day on which, hidden under a white sheet in an ambulance, posing as dead, he made his wild race for life out of Petrograd, during the red reign of terror, nine months ago, and how he managed to slip unobserved into London—incognito, as just a plain traveler—these things remain for him to tell.

But the transcendant fact about this man, of surprises is that he is here, with his hat once more openly in the ring for Russia's fight for freedom from the Prussian yoke.

Kerensky, it was learned, is going to France next week and will not proceed to America, for the present at least.

His mission, as a "private citizen," according to his own modest description, is to tell the democratic peoples of the world that Russia is about to throw off the misrule of the Bolsheviki, and that all that is needed to put her back into the ranks of active belligerents is allied and American aid, economic, financial and moral.

BRITISH CAPTURE HUN POST IN FLANDERS

By International News Service.

London, June 27.—The capture of a strong German post on the Flanders front was announced by the War Office today. Prisoners and machine guns were taken in the fighting, which centred around Vieux Berquin. There was gas shelling in the sector of the Nieppe Forest.

The text of the War Office report follows:

"By a successful minor operation last night, we gained possession of a hostile strong point west of Vieux Berquin and captured a number of prisoners and some machine guns. Hostile artillery has been active at different points between Givenchy and Robecq and with gas shells on the northeastern portion of Nieppe Forest."

ville high school and enlisted in the American army five months ago.

"I was in the center of the first wave," said he. "Before we went over the top our artillery certainly gave the Boches 'old Harry.' We went ahead with fixed bayonets. The Germans gave us a counter barrage and some of us were trapped between both. It sure was hell for a while, but we had to stand the gaff.

GUN PITS EVERYWHERE.

"It was worth the price to see the way our fellows charged. We had to go up hill and it was covered with boulders. Everywhere there were machine gun pits with the Boches blazing away at us. But our fellows know our objectives and we took them, too. The Germans were on the run and we could hear them yelling 'Kamerad' on every side.

"I was in two previous fights, but last night was one corker. The Americans were on the job every minute. American wounded were given first aid in an ancient church."

A sulky German lieutenant who was captured by us in the recent fighting on this front, offered the following remarks today to vent his feelings:

"Germany's war against the Americans has just begun. We will wipe out the American divisions as if they were so many companies."

A different tale was that or a German sergeant:

"INVADING" AMERICA.

"Our officers told us a German army was invading America and had captured New York and was marching on Philadelphia. They said our U-boats had sunk scores of ships off New York. We were also told that Americans torture and kill their prisoners. We were surprised to find so many American soldiers here and amazed at the youth of the Americans. Your fellows sure do fight like devils."

Italians Strengthen Capo Sile Position, Taking 379 Prisoners

Rome, June 27.—The official statement of Italian war operations:

"Our troops, having completely reoccupied the bridgehead of Capo Sile, exanded it, provoking and firmly sustaining resolute counter-attacks by numerous enemy forces. Eight officers and 371 of other ranks were captured.

"On the remainder of the front there were artillery dules of not very great intensity and activity by small parties.

"Between Mori and Loppio one of our assault patrols surprised and destroyed an enemy advanced post, capturing the sentry.

"Our flights dropped several tons of bombs on enemy ammunition dumps on the Venetian plain and on railway establishments at Mattarello.

"Seven hostile machines were brought down. Lieutenant Flavio Barrachchini obtained his 21st victory.

"In the clearing up of the battlefield, a few hundred additional prisoners were taken.

"The complete recapture of all our artillery, arms and material has been ascertained. Only after long statistical work will it be possible to establish the enormous quantity of Austrian arms and material which remained in our hands."

702,000 STAMP PLEDGES ARE IN SIGHT

Plymouth County won second rank among the Massachusetts counties on the June drive for a million pledges to buy War Savings Stamps when it reported being 500 pledges over its quota of 41,000, with eight towns yet to be heard from.

The reports from the 75,000 women canvassers who are visiting homes in the State showed a decided quickening of pace as the drive draws near National War Savings Day, June 28.

The latest totals indicate that 702,500 pledges are in sight. Eighty cities and towns in the State are now over the top, the latest to report this result being Reading, North Reading, Spencer, Rockland, Brewster, Easton, Marblehead, Oakham, Wayland, Hawley, New Salem and Uxbridge.

600 IN LIMIT CLUB.

Mrs. E. E. Kelley, woman chairman for Easton, made a model report. Seeking a quota of 1,400 she and her War-Savings Service workers secured 1,868 pledges of 4,681 stamps, or $23,406. This included 600 in the Limit Club. She reports the youngest subscriber, Miss Esther Church Andrews, eighty-three weeks old.

Watertown has 2,800 of its 4,440 quota and is pushing hard. Wakefield reports 2,000 of its 3,600 secured, with the factory canvass in progress.

Newburyport, out of a quota of 4,200, reports 3,106 pledges in hand.

In Malden the committee had secured 4,086 at the end of the second day.

Greenfield reports 68; Canton 58, which is nearly 1 per cent. of population; Winchester 50. Holliston reported 85% pledges, including four limit pledges. Uxbridge was 100 over its quota of 1,550 and still canvassing. Framingham reported 2,216 pledges or 50 per cent. of its quota.

Roxbury is planning a big War-Savings rally to last the whole evening of War-Savings Day, June 28, at several points in the district. The speakers will be ex-Governor David I. Walsh, Ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, Postmaster William F. Murray, Lieutenant A. A. Gathemann and Simon Swig.

The first detailed returns from the thirty-two majors making a canvass in the city of Boston, Mrs. Philip L. Saltonstall, are as follows with the majors, the number of pledges and pledge quota:

F. W. MANSFIELD IN RACE FOR GOVERNOR

Frederick W. Mansfield today announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

"I am a candidate and today will take out nomination papers," was Mr. Mansfield's brief announcement.

Mr. Mansfield's statement, followed closely the announcement of the candidacy of Richard H. Long, the Framingham manufacturer, and for many years prominent in the councils of the party.

William A. Gaston and Former Lieutenant-Governor Edward P. Barry are among the tentative candidates for the Democratic nomination. In fact, Mr. Gaston is candidating, more or less.

Mr. Long, it is assumed, will receive the support of the Democratic organization. Mr. Mansfield twice has been the party standard bearer, and was twice defeated by Governor McCall.

McCALL GETS SENATE PAPERS.

United States Senate nomination papers for Governor McCall were issued from the Secretary of State's office today to the Governor's secretary, Henry P. Long. Charles S. Baxter, manager of three successful campaigns for the Governor, will be the active manager of his Senatorial fight against John W. Weeks. The papers were put into circulation at once.

Governor McCall, on the Lancaster, N. H., end of the long distance phone, was told today that his decision to become a candidate had been hailed with manifestations of joy, and promised support, by the liberal and progressive wing of the Republican party. He will remain on his vacation about three weeks.

COX STATEMENT EXPECTED.

Channing H. Cox, Speaker of the House, is expected to issue at once a statement detailing his claims for the Republican nomination for Lieutenant-Governor. Guy A. Ham has already issued a brief announcement. Former Mayor Edwin U. Curtis of Boston is a tentative candidate. It is not at all unlikely that Mr. Curtis will enter the field.

The appointment of former Lieutenant-Governor Louis A. Frothingham to the public trustees of the Boston Elevated seems to leave Calvin Coolidge in undisputed possession of the Republican nomination for Governor. Mr. Baxter is said to have said that he advised Mr. Coolidge to make his announcement last week, which was done, and to have assured him of the support of the McCall end of the party.

Forbids His Family to Salute Flag and Is Sent to Jail

Anthony Racusa was sternly rebuked by Judge Almy in Cambridge Court today for saying he would not salute the American flag nor let his three children.

The court also refused to give Racusa a month in which to pay a fine for keeping his children out of school, but ordered him committed to jail in default of the fine.

Racusa lives on School place. Recently complaint was made that his children were not saluting the flag in school. Then the children remained away from school. So Racusa was fined $5 for each child absent.

When he asked for time Judge Almy inquired whether he would let his children return to school and salute the flag.

"No."

"Will you salute the flag?"

"No."

Then the court said: "I'll not give you any more time in which to pay your fine. You are living in this country and should respect its flag."

NEW U. S. BUREAU TO PLAN HELP FOR RUSSIA

By International News Service.

Washington, June 27.—An independent governmental bureau, to operate under the State Department but to have the widest power along all lines, will be organized to deal with the economic side of the Russian problem, according to information from administration sources today.

This bureau would deal directly with the problem of the commercial rehabilitation of Russia, would arrange financial help and generally administer the aid which the United States and the Allies have now decided, will be needed to wrest Russia from German control.

TRUST FUND EXEMPT FROM STATE INCOME TAX

In ordering the tax commissioner of the Commonwealth to abate a tax illegally assessed upon Mrs. Emily M. Maguire of Cambridge, under the income tax law of Massachusetts, the full bench of the Supreme Court decides that the law does not apply to Mrs. Maguire's interest in a trust fund created and managed in Pennsylvania.

LOYALTY WEEK FINDS READY RESPONSE IN HEARTS OF CITIZENS

Mayor Peters to Address Great Gathering on Boston Common on Children's Day.

ter, with their fife and drum corps; St. Joseph's Cadets of Roxbury, St. Mary's Cadets of Charlestown, St. John's Cadets of Roxbury, St. Vincent's Cadets of South Boston and a band and several troops of Boy Scouts of America.

BOY SCOUTS IN LINE.

District Secretary E. S. Roche of Boston arranged for the presence of the Boy Scouts in line. Miss Barr met with ready response from the leaders of the various organizations. They were happy to permit the boys to participate in the Children's Day exercises.

Professor John O'Shea, supervisor of music of the Boston public schools, visited the Samuel Adams School, East Boston, to arrange for the appearance of the group of fifty children who are to sing one of the numbers. Miss Helen Garland will sing the solo parts. Those who heard this group sing Memorial Day at the G. A. R. exercises in Ford Hall, praised the singing highly. The entire gathering are to repeat the pledge of allegiance to flag and country and will sing the national anthem and America.

23 NATIONS TO TAKE PART.

Representatives of twenty-three nationalities have signified their intention of participating in the exercises on the Common on the evening of July 4. Several features are being arranged by the various groups. The Italians will be out in force. Fully 2,000 are expected to take part. Their program will be completed tonight.

One of the most popular days of "Loyalty Week," judging from comment throughout the city, will be "Letter Day" next Monday. The Public Safety Committee asks every man, woman and child in Boston to write a letter to somebody in the service next Monday.

Many more leading Boston citizens have added their indorsement to the "Loyalty Week" plan, believing that it will awaken the people of the city to their full duty toward flag and country.

Among those who have indorsed the idea are Miss Mary E. Elliott, State Secretary of Woman's Relief Corps; Major Patrick F. O'Keefe, vice-president of Cosmopolitan Trust Company and member of the Boston Public Safety Committee; Felix Vorenberg, leading Boston merchant and member of Boston Public Safety Company and member of executive committee of the Boston prominent business man of the city and chairman of Food Production Committee, and George B. Johnson, Committee executive board.

Statements by them expressing their views of "Loyalty Week" follow:

MISS MARY E. ELLIOT, Massachusetts State Secretary of Woman's Relief Corps.—In the various features outlined for the observance of loyalty week, are plans that must appeal to all loyal-hearted people.

Newspaper Day! The power of the press cannot be over-estimated and we know that it has wielded a mighty influence in aid of the Allies.

Children's Day! When the children of Boston who have participated in the present war work shall have grown to manhood and womanhood, will they not in those future years take a just pride in the fact that they contributed their part in aid of the greatest struggle for liberty ever known?

Church Day! The influence of this day will be far-reaching and the sermons to be delivered from the pulpits throughout the city on Sunday next, with their earnest appeals for the highest type of loyalty will be an inspiration.

Letter Day! Precious indeed will be the messages of good cheer penned on this day. May they bear evidence of the appreciation of the loyal people of Boston for the soldiers and sailors who are defending our flag on land and sea.

Angelus Day! The prayers offered on this day will be appeals to heaven for a "Righteous Peace," and will breathe a spirit of consecration to the principles of justice and freedom, for which this conflict is being waged by our armies and only upon the triumph of which can a permanent peace be founded.

Sacrifice Day. When thousands of men and women are sacrificing life, health and comforts far away from home and loved ones for the cause of humanity, shall we not be willing to make the small sacrifice suggested that will aid in the financial support of the war?

July Fourth. A time of rejoicing at the spirit of humanitarianism that extends its blessing beyond the boundaries of narrowness and prejudice and includes in its civilizing ministrations all the races of the earth.

MAJOR PATRICK F. O'KEEFE, Members of Executive Board, Boston Public Safety Committee—The approaching anniversary of Independence Day takes on a special significance this year, when we have such a large number of stalwart Americans on the battlefields of Europe, fighting unselfishly for the emancipation of mankind.

Loyalty Week should find every Bostonian in a spirit of sacrifice and devotion towards our country, doing everything to help the great cause to victory. Every man, woman and child should take part in the numerous events set apart for each day of Loyalty Week.

All of these events are important and should in some way touch every citizen, but we wish to especially emphasize the importance and sublimeness of two days—Monday, Letter Day, and Wednesday, Sacrifice Day.

There is scarcely a single person in Boston who does not have some relative or acquaintance "over there" or getting ready to go there. Drop that lad a letter next Monday and tell him how grateful you are that he is fighting your fight, cheer him on to victory and tell him that you are going to be one of the millions that will do everything in your power to back him up in the struggle.

Then on Thursday start in to fulfil your promises to that soldier lad by sacrificing some luxury or even some want, so that he and his comrades will come back victorious. Go over your daily habits and routine and you'll easily find something that you frequently buy. Give it up and buy War Stamps—one every day if you can, one every week you must.

By GEORGE B. JOHNSON, Chairman Food Production Committee, Boston Public Safety Committee—It seems to be that Liberty Weeks offers a wonderful opportunity for the children of Greater Boston to receive inspiration of a patriotic kind and also to increase their knowledge of what is going on in the world. It is also obvious that the children themselves will not take the initiative in getting in touch with the activities of Liberty Week, and every emphasis must be laid upon the duty of parents to inform themselves as to just what events of the week children can take part in, and see that their children are on hand to participate in those various functions.

Official Program of Loyalty Week

The following is the official program for Loyalty Week:

Friday, June 28.—Newspaper Day—Day on which Boston newspapers have been invited to print Loyalty editions and editorials.

Saturday, June 29.—Children's Day—Patriotic celebration on Boston Common at 11:30 a. m. Singing of "Star Spangled Banner" and "America" by the children. In addition, children will recite Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag and Country. Music by band and other features.

Sunday, June 230.—Church Day—Day on which Boston clergymen have been invited by the committee in charge to preach Loyalty sermons.

Monday, July 1.—Letter Day On this day letters are to be written by residents of Boston to some soldier or sailor in the service.

Tuesday, July 2.—Angelus Day—Special prayer to be recited at noon for victory of the allies.

Wednesday, July 3.—Sacrifice Day—Promise to be made on this day by every Bostonian to give up for duration of war some indulgence and spend price of same in war support.

Thursday, July 4.—Neighborhood celebrations with simple patriotic exercises. Gala program on Boston Common, participated in by all races in the evening. Lowering of the colors will be one of the features. Songs and dances will be given by the various groups on a specially erected platform over the Frog Pond.

CHILDREN TELL MANY WAYS TO EARN MONEY FOR WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

Stamp, stamp, stamp, the kids are saving,
Watch the war stamps, see them come;
Help each child to do his bit
Let each war stamp make a hit
Perhaps another Hun for Uncle Sam.
Contributed by Mrs. Ethel Rickard, Guild, N. H.

From the way the letters are flooding the desk of the War Stamp Editor it would seem that every school child in New England is doing his or her bit in the thrift campaign which is helping to win the war. A reading of the letters shows that there is no end to the opportunities to earn money with which to buy War Savings Stamps.

CARES FOR DOG.

For example, a little Dorchester girl of eight years writes that she is being paid for taking care of a sick dog "that got in a terrible fight and got his face all bit."

War gardens, doing errands for parents or neighbors and helping with the housework furnish most of the opportunities of earning money for War Stamps, according to the letters received. One little girl, whose brother has gone to war and whose mother works every day in a shop, does all the housework herself and has "supper all ready every night, too." Her mother gives her fifty cents a week and she invests it all in War Savings Stamps—which is very meritorious.

HOPE TO WIN PRIZES.

Miss Mary W. Read, principal of the John K. Berry School, in West Mansfield, writes: "Some of the children of the Berry School have written letters to you hoping, of course, to win a prize. I am sending them to you,' and she encloses seven of them —from Sidney E. Briggs, grade 8; Edward Murphy, grade 8; Charles Brown, grade 6; Nellie M. Farmenter, grade 8; Alice Louise Sevaia, grade 6; Myrtle L. Lovely, grade 4, and Elmer Goyea, grade 8.

Those who try for the prizes should take care to observe the rules of the competition. Nearly all do this, but once in a while a letter comes along that has to be thrown aside, because the writer has written too much, or has failed to secure the signature of the teacher or clergyman, or has neglected to give age, grade or home address. The War Stamp Editor is happy to say that the percentage of "barred" letters is very low indeed.

Here are some of the letters received in recent mails:

ELEANOR WHITE, eleven years:

I am writing to tell you how I am earning money for Thrift Stamps. I planted a garden with radishes. I sold the radishes for 5 cents a bunch and made $1.75 and I bought seven Thrift Stamps. I am now helping my father in the garden, pulling weeds, to earn more. I have planted another garden and of radishes, for a second crop to sell them. I am thirteen years old. I go to the Cohern School.

No. 15 Sixth street, Medford, Osgood School. Endorsed by M. L. Baxter, teacher.

ESTHER RICKARD, seven years—

I am a little girl seven years old and earning money doing errands for the neighbors. Have bought nine and shall try and earn $10 worth before January, 1919. My sister, brother and I have each a war garden. Will sell some of the things in it and buy Thrift Stamps. We are trying hard to help Uncle Sam in every way we can. If I win a prize for this letter I will put it in Thrift Stamps.

Guild, N. H., primary school. Indorsed by Mrs. R. F. Rickard, Sunday School teacher.

LAWRENCE LIEBFRIED, seven years—How I earn money for Thrift Stamps: I take care of the baby for by mama and I do the errands for my mama and papa and help in the garden and sell lettuce and I have a garden of my own. I am going to sell all my own.

No. 262 Winthrop street, Winthrop, Centre school, grade 1. Indorsed by Sylvia C. Ball, teacher.

LILLIAN DE CHENE, eleven years —How I earn my money for war stamps: I am eleven years old. My mother works in a shop every day because my brother has gone to war. I do all the work so my mother gives me fifty cents a week so I can buy two stamps every week. I have supper ready every night, too.

1106 Tremont street, Boston. Rice School, Grade 4, indorsed by M. C. Doyle, teacher.

TESSIE GILBERT, eleven years—

I am going to try for a prize. Everybody can give war saving stamps. I weed the garden, clean windows, dig dandelions and sell them wholesale to storemen, wash dishes and try to get prizes from the Boston AMERICAN. I save legal stamps and when I go to the store I can have them. This Summer I am going to paint cards and my mother is going to sell them to a store. I sell newspapers to the ingman and all our old rubbish. When our vegetables get ripe I am going to sell to my mother.

No. 12 Ellery street, Cambridge, Harvard School, indorsed by A. B. Lowell.

SYLVIA BUCHIGNANI, eight years —I earn my money by knitting squares for the soldiers' covers. And sometimes I take care of a sick dog that got in a terrible fight and got his face all bit. And sometimes I am a good girl so Mrs. Chace gives me more money. And Mrs. Chace says I tell the truth so she gives me some money. I am trying to get a lot of money to get a lot of stamps to try to kill the Kaiser quicker.

No. 31 Wales street, Dorchester. William E. Endicott School, grade 3, indorsed by Miss N. B. Vinal, teacher.

PARADE IN HYDE PARK TO AID STAMP DRIVE

A parade for the purpose of assisting the War Savings Stamp committee of Hyde Park will be held tonight through the principal streets of the district after which there will be a rally in Everett square which will be addressed by several prominent speakers.

Nathaniel P. Sears is chairman of the arrangements and has been chosen chief marshal of the parade, which will include military, civic and automobile divisions.

CITY EMPLOYES FAIL TO SWEAR ALLEGIANCE

Providence, R. I., June 27.—A considerable number of city employes have failed to take the oath of allegiance, as recently required by the City Council. Three weeks have been allowed them to be sworn. Among the number are about fifty school teachers, a number of retired policemen and firemen, some highway department workmen and some employes of the water department.

MOTHERS SHOW INTEREST IN BABY BATHING

Boston mothers are finding in the Child Conservation Cottage on the Common a never-failing fund of information on the care of their little Archibalds and Viviens. They come, not only ones, but often with their countless problems for the nurse in charge, Miss Katherine Shepard, to straighten out for them. Probably the lives of many helpless little mites have been saved, and the fears of many anxious mothers put at rest through her kindly sympathy and understanding.

Miss Mary A. Barr, in charge of next Saturday's children's day festival of baby week, has arranged for special demonstrations at Children's Houses throughout the day. All the experts connected with the Women's Child Welfare Committee and Women's Committee on Food Conservation of the Boston Public Safety Committee will be on hand to solve perplexing problems for mothers. Every mother who appears at the cottage Saturday will be presented a United States flag, and so will every child accompanying her.

"Just how" to bathe the baby is an interesting part of the day's program, which mothers crowded around eagerly to see.

Baby's tub is placed on a stand, which was made out of a packing box, and which cost considerably less than a dollar.

MEN INTERESTED.

In fact, one of the points which the Cottage is demonstrating is the fact that so many of the labor-saving devices which mean so much to the mother, and which, if bought, are altogether too expensive for the family of average means, can be made very easily by the handy man at home with little expense.

As especial effort has been made to reach the foreign-born mothers, and the literature on the care of the child, with recipes for nourishing food, has been printed in several languages, and a course of lectures in their native tongue has been arranged by the committee in charge.

But it isn't the mothers alone that come to the miniature baby clinic. It is surprising to learn how interested the men are in the welfare of the wriggling little bundle of humanity entrusted to their care. One devoted "Daddy" came in to visit one day, and the visit proved so edifying that the next evening, he brought his wife in to see it, too.

82 Draftees Leave Salem.

Salem's eighty-two draftees left for Camp Dix today. They were given comfort kits by the city. Mayor Sullivan and the City Council escorted them to the train.

PUGILIST DEAD AFTER SALOON FIGHT

Ernest Coffey of No. 139 N street, South Boston, is dead at the Carney Hospital and the police are searching the city for John L. Donovan, who, it is alleged, killed him after a quarrel in a saloon on East Sixth street.

According to report the men were old friends. They became involved in an argument and finally clinched, upon which they were ejected from the place. The two then went to the rear of the building, which is near another saloon, whose bartender heard sounds of an altercation. He says he heard some one say: "Don't stab me, Jack!" He saw a man run by the rear door of his saloon, whom he believes he could identify if he saw him again.

When the police arrived a call was sent to the station for reserves and the whole district was scoured with to find that Donovan either got away before the search started or that he had found a hiding place in some house in that vicinity.

Coffey was lying on the ground unconscious, his body surrounded by a pool of blood. The policemen commandeered a passing automobile and the dying man was taken to the Carney Hospital, where he was placed in a private ward with a policeman by his side in the event of his becoming conscious and making a statement. He died about thirty minutes after his arrival, without recovering consciousness.

Coffey was well known in South Boston, being at one time a pretty fast bantamweight boxer. In the square ring he fought under the name of "Bartley Riley." He was thirty-four years old and leaves a widow.

He had been badly wounded on the head, under the left arm and over the heart, and on the right arm and near the shoulder.

Through a misapprehension David J. Donovan of No. 150 L street was at first questioned by the police. His home was found locked, but it transpired that his family was at the beach for a vacation, and Donovan, who is a South Boston resident of excellent character, was released.

A description of John L. Donovan was sent out by the police following the announcement of the death of Coffey. The police are confident that they will have him under arrest before tonight.

He is thirty-three years old, five feet nine inches in height, weight 136 pounds, and is of dark complexion, hair inclined to be curly, smooth face. He wore a blue serge suit and gray cap.

VAUDEVILLE FAVORITES TO APPEAR AT I CO. BALL

Saturday will be a big day for patriotic Bostonians.

Not only is it the second day of Loyalty Week, but it is Navy Day, with the big program of sports in the Charles River Basin. And at night, there is the great jazz band ball for I Company in the Boston Arena.

Two bands will play, vaudeville favorites will appear, and members of I company will do everything possible to make the event one long to be remembered. Everyone who attends will have the satisfaction of knowing that his ticket means a contribution to the company fund of "Boston's Own" company, which is at present without ways and means of stocking its larder with the little comforts that soldiers so much appreciate, and of buying equipment that the company sorely needs.

"PERSHING'S CRUSADERS" REMAIN ANOTHER WEEK

There will be daily matinees, as well as evening performances thereafter, so that all may have an opportunity of witnessing these wonderful pictures showing what the government is doing in the prosecution of its part in the world's war.

TRAINED NURSE GIVES RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR

Gives Recipe for Simple Home-Made Remedy That Quickly Darkens It.

Mrs. A. Dixon, a well known Brooklyn trained nurse, made the following statement regarding gray hair: "Streaked, faded or gray hair can be quickly turned black, brown or light brown by the use of the following remedy that you can make at home:

"Merely get a small box of Orlex powder at any drug store. It costs very little and no extras to buy. Dissolve it in water and comb it through the hair. Full directions for mixing and use come in each box.

"You need not hesitate to use Orlex, as a $100.00 gold bond comes in each box guaranteeing the user that Orlex does not contain silver, lead, zinc, mercury, aniline, coal-tar products or their derivatives.

"It does not rub off, is not sticky or gummy and leaves the hair fluffy. It will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger."—Advertisement.

FOOD INSPECTOR IS ACCUSED OF BLACKMAIL

M. P. Crowe of Roxbury Enters Not Guilty Plea in New Bedford Court

New Bedford, June 27.—Maurice P. Crowe of Dale street, Roxbury, inspector of food and drugs for the State Department of Health for the past ten years at $1,600 a year, was accused in the local court today of blackmail in two counts upon Thomas Brehaut and John S. Gracie, milk producers of Dartmouth.

Crowe pleaded not guilty and was held for a continued hearing.

He was arrested, according to the police, after a trap had been set for him in a Purchase street saloon, where he is alleged to have accepted him.

from Brehaut $50 in bills whose serial numbers had previously been noted by the officers.

Crowe is known all over the State on account of his official position. He has been regarded as a vigorous prosecutor of violators of the food and drug statutes.

The first the police knew of the present case, as they tell the story, was when Brehaut came to headquarters with a complaint that Crowe had secured $100 from Brehaut's partner, Gracie, under threat to lodge complaint against him as a milk producer.

Then, according to the police, Crowe demanded $100 more from Brehaut. Chief Inspector Walter Almond, the police continue, told Brehaut to make a date with Crowe to give some money in a Purchase street saloon last night.

Brehaut went to the saloon last night. Police Inspectors George R. Lawrence and W. F. Glennon were in hiding near Brehaut. Crowe came in, the police allege, and was paid $50 by Brehaut. Then Lawrence and Glennon jumped out and arrested Crowe.

At headquarters the police found, they say, that the numbers of bills, amounting to $50, found on Crowe, corresponded to the numbers of the bills Brehaut was known to have on him.

SIGHT MYSTERY SHIP, ARMED, OFF COAST

Incoming Steamers Bring News of Low-Lying Craft; May Be Raider

By International News Service.

An Atlantic Port, June 27.—Incoming steamers report a strange craft, low-lying and armed with five-inch guns, between 150 and 200 miles off the Virginia capes.

The master of an incoming vessel saw the mysterious stranger last Saturday and reports that it followed his steamer, but kept out of range of his defence guns, which had been made ready for use.

Officials say that they have no definite reports on the vessel, which may have been either an enemy raider or submarine mother ship.

Washington, June 27.—The navy had nothing to make public on reports telling of a mysterious craft off the Virginia capes. The report is being investigated. It is understood that the naval officers in charge of coast defence do not believe that there are any German submarines off this coast now.

CONSUL HIGGINS TELLS OF BRAZIL IN THE WAR

Edward Higgins, United States consul at Bahia, Brazil, who was removed from his post at Stuttgart, Germany, before the United States entered the war because the German government complained of his "unneutral activities," has returned to his home here for his first vacation in six years, and brings word of Brazil's interest in the war as one of the allies. He declares Brazil has already sent as much of its navy as can be spared to Europe, and that a division, at least, will be raised before long to participate in the fighting in France.

AUTOIST HELD FOR DEATH OF SOMERVILLE MAN

Fred Van Stone of No. 10 Ernest street, Jamaica Plain, was held in $1,100 in Cambridge court today on charges of manslaughter, reckless driving and operating a car under the influence of liquor. On the night of June 13, according to the police, he was driving a car which struck and killed John C. Meehan of No. 14 Cherry street, West Somerville, on Massachusetts avenue in Cambridge. Meehan and his brother-in-law, Patrick McCarron, were in the roadway fixing their own car at the time. McCarron was hurt.

ALEXANDER KAHN IS SUED FOR DIVORCE

Alexander Kahn, well known in theatrical circles, was sued for divorce today by his wife, Celia Kahn, who is a milliner. The grounds on which the suit was brought were desertion. Hahn was press agent for the Russian dancer, Lydia Lipkowska, during the time that the Boston Opera was in its ascendancy here.

Kahn left his wife four weeks ago, according to the story that she told Judge Wait, and has since refused to return. His claim is that their interests are widely different and they must live apart.

LOCOMOTIVE WHISTLE GIVES FIRE ALARM

Fire believed to have been caused by a leaky oil stove early today damaged the two-story wooden dwelling at No. 1 Short street, East Boston, owned and occupied by Frank J. Nelson, seventy-nine, and his son Horatio, forty-seven years old. The son was awakened by the screeching of a locomotive whistle at the Harbor View Station of the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn R. R., which is directly opposite the house. The rattle of fire apparatus and the blowing of the engine whistle drew a big crowd to the fire.

GOVERNMENT TAKES OVER UNION FREIGHT RAILROAD

The government is to take over the Union Freight Railroad, running over Atlantic avenue. This road connects the terminals of the Boston & Maine, New Haven and Boston & Albany roads. Tracks are being laid over Northern avenue, over which cars will be run to connect the South Boston terminals with this system. The Union Freight railroad runs on Atlantic avenue like trolley cars, and have long been a unique sight for visitors.

VIGOROUS DENIAL OF CHARGES BY MRS. STORY

Mrs. William Cumming Story of New York city, former president-general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, well known in Boston and one of the most prominent club women in the land, makes vigorous denial of charges returned against her by the New York County Grand Jury of grand and petty larceny and conspiracy in connection with business of the National Emergency Relief Society, of which she is president.

She hinted in New York, according to despatches today, that there was "animus" in statements which had been made concerning her.

Through her counsel she called the charges the result of "a disgruntlement on the part of the treasurer of the National Relief Society, who was removed from office by vote of the organization."

Assistant District Attorney Kilroe of New York said that the chief witness in the case against Mrs. Story was Mrs. A. T. Baldwin, who, he added, had been deposed from the treasurership of the society by a faction friendly to Mrs. Story.

The indictment and arrest of Mrs. Story caused a stir among Boston and Pay State women prominent in patriotic societies and clubs.

In one count of the indictment Mrs. Story is accused of petit larceny. She is alleged to have obtained a contribution of $30 from F. Colt Johnson, with the understanding that it was all to go to the society. It is alleged that $9 per cent. went to William Garland Brown as commission, Brown was a collector for the society.

On a second count Mrs. Story is accused of obtaining $263 from the Hero Land Bazaar by falsely certifying that the society was not paying any commissions to any agent. It had, in fact, an agreement to pay Brown 50 per cent.

Sterling and Allan Story, sons of Mrs. Story, are indicted with their mother on two counts.

Word of Sympathy Wins Hearts of French, Says Miss Sturgis

The AMERICAN prints today the fourth instalment of the vivid account given by Miss Mabel Sturgis of Beacon street and Manchester-by-the-Sea, to Marie Dunbar of the AMERICAN staff, of the relief work that is being carried on for the aid of the French refugees, among whom Miss Sturgis has worked for a year and a half with the Refugee Department of the Red Cross Civil Affairs Bureau. Installments already printed have told how the refugees arrive at Evain, France, receive mail there and are distributed for housing, and how bravely the French people endure air raids and the many other discomforts and dangers of war.

By MARIE DUNBAR.

"It's a bright touch here and there, a sympathetic word," continued Miss Sturgis, "that is as much a part of the Civil Affairs as their efficient system. An example which speaks for itself was that of the tuberculosis department of the Civil Affairs.

"The workers in this department," said Miss Sturgis, "have made a complete study of the tuberculosis in France. There is not as much of it among the soldiers as the people thought. While investigating the cases of tuberculosis the workers found that many of the beds reserved for the tuberculosis patients were not full.

"After a little more investigation they discovered that the beds were empty because the surroundings were rather dreary. Immediately the tuberculosis department of the Civil Affairs took the matter into their own hands. They provided bright coverlets, a few attractive knick-knacks and furnished reclining chairs in the gardens. The gardens at the French hospitals are beautiful. Croquet grounds and seats were also provided. Soon the beds were all full and the tuberculosis patients were contented and happy. Dr. White of New York is head of the tuberculosis department.

SHOW WONDERFUL COURAGE.

Are the "repatries" anxious to receive help? I asked Miss Sturgis.

"As I have said before, the courage and spirit of the French people is wonderful," said Miss Sturgis, "but the workers who aid the refugees must use a certain amount of diplomacy and tact.

"A worker in the refugee department must not send the refugee away feeling that he or she is a beggar, nor must the refugee leave feeling that the worker was not interested in his or her cause. To be helpful, to encourage the refugee, and give him fresh hope without developing any of them into beggars, is the rather delicate task of the worker of the refugee department.

"And right here I might say that the French are doing wonderful work for their own people. There are many wealthy refugees and they lend a helping hand to all other refugees. Everyone works in France. The young girls are aiding in the hospital work.

"There are many American women who are doing a great work in France. Many more should respond to the call. Oh there is so much for the trained social worker or as I have said for those who can speak French fluently. They should apply to the Red Cross headquarters, Boston.

FRENCH LOVE AMERICANS.

"The French love the Americans and are very anxious to take up all American ideas.

"Returning to the subject of the refugees," continued Miss Sturgis, "they are now being kept in Belgium for a couple of months or several weeks before they are allowed to return to France. This is because many of the intelligent ones carried valuable military secrets to France when they returned. They are kept in Belgium this length of time because the Germans feel that by the time they arrive in France this news would be stale and useless.

"The Bureau for Children, which is one of the divisions of the Civil Affairs, is headed by Dr. William Palmer Lucas. Infant mortality and children's welfare campaigns have been an important factor of this department.

HOTELS TURNED INTO SCHOOLS.

"The problem of the refugee children is solved easily in France as regarding the schools. The schools are the same all over France, so the minute the children arrive from the trains they are placed in schools. The tourists hotels—there is a number of them—have been turned into children's hospitals. You see there are no more tourists.

"When the refugees arrive at the Casino there is not only food and letters awaiting them, but there are portable bath-houses in the gardens where they can bathe. And if you have an idea that French people do not like baths you should see the rush that is made for the bath-houses. The little French boys especially delight in these warm shower baths.

"Traveling exhibits have been features of the campaign. I saw 47,000 French people gathered around one of these traveling exhibits which showed the French mother just how to care for the baby. The French mothers are anxious and ready to take up the new ideas. There are also numerous courses which train young girls for nursemaids.

"What about the food, clothing and recreation situation in France?" I asked Miss Sturgis.

THREE MEATLESS DAYS.

"The plan of restrictions on certain foods is worked out very systematically," explained Miss Sturgis. "No one can secure bread or sugar at any cafe, restaurant or hotel without presenting a bread and sugar coupon. Each one carries these bread and sugar coupons the same as carrying their pocket book. The coupons are made of soft paper and can be readily carried around with little inconvenience.

"Then, of course, there are three meatless days in France. They are Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday. On these days the meat shops are all closed. On Tuesday only a certain amount of meat can be purchased."

FORMER BOSTON MAN DEAD IN CLEVELAND

Word has been received here of the death in Cleveland of Edward L. Minor, formerly of this city. Mr. Minor had been employed by Armour & Company since 1894, and in 1900 was made assistant auditor for the Boston territory. In 1911 he was made assistant superintendent of the Toledo territory.

THOMPSON NEW SCHOOL HEAD IN BOSTON

Frank V. Thompson has been elected superintendent of Boston schools for a term of six years at $10,000 a year. It was just as the session of the board was about to come to an end that the roll was called.

The first vote showed Miss Curtis and Mr. Abrahams for Thompson, Mr. Corcoran and Mr. Lane for Burke and Judge Sullivan for Rafter. The other four members voted the same way on the second vote. Then Chairman Sullivan made a statement and voted for Thompson.

Immediately came a statement by Mr. Corcoran that there would be much surprise at the "flop" of the chairman.

Judge Sullivan said before casting his vote that he felt the matter should be settled before the vacation period. "I think," said he, "that we ought to have a man whose heart is close to the elementary schools."

"My experience has been that a superintendent is going to emphasize that part of the work in which he is a specialist. I have felt that Mr. Rafter was the man, for these reasons. It is evident to me that I can't get a majority for Rafter."

After referring to the fact that the majority of the board did not care to go outside of Boston for a man, he instructed the clerk to record him for Thompson and the long contest was over.

Booming of Guns Drives Shakers from Colony

Harvard, June 27.—Harvard's colony of Shakers, established 137 years ago this month, has been abandoned. The members of the colony have surrendered to the artillerymen at Camp Devens, turning their thousands of acres over to agents of the government, which soon will need the land for drilling soldiers.

ALLEN S. BENSON QUITS THE SOCIALIST PARTY

New York, June 27.—Allen S. Benson, Socialist candidate for President of the United States in 1916, has resigned from the party. He described his withdrawal as "a protest against the foreign-born leadership that blindly believes a non-American policy can be made to appeal to many Americans." He declared that he would not remain in a party which places all the belligerent nations, including those dominated by Germany's imperialism, on an equal footing.

La-may Face Powder Does Not Contain Any White Lead

Now you can use a pure face powder that beautifies your complexion wonderfully and is guaranteed not to injure the most delicate baby skin. And it really stays on better than any other face powder. It does not contain white lead or starchy rice powder (Poudre de Riz) to make it stick. White lead poisons the skin and rice powder turns into a gluey paste that encourages enlarged pores, blackheads and rice powder pimples. The specialist who makes this improved powder uses a medicinal ingredient that doctors use to heal the skin. In fact, this new powder helps to prevent and reduces enlarged pores and pimples. It is also astringent, discouraging fatiness, crows' feet and wrinkles. Because it is pure and because it stays on so well in this La-may powder (French, Poudre L'Ame) is now used by over a million American women. The large size is only fifty cents and the trial size twenty-five cents. Remember, La-may is guaranteed. If you do not find La-may much better than any you have ever used, your dealer is authorized to return your money without question. Refuse substitutes. Your common sense will tell you that when you are offered a substitute it is sure to be a demonstrator trying to sell an inferior powder that pays a big commission. When you use this absolutely pure La-may and see how splendidly it beautifies your complexion, you will understand why it so quickly became the most popular beauty powder sold in New York.

Don't Let Soap Spoil Your Hair

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain unsalted cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.—Advertisement.

AVIATOR TO DROP PASSES FOR BALL GAMES

Chief Boatswain's Mate Harry Alpert doing a swallow dive.

Marblehead or Beverly Farms in his plane.

In this way one hundred tickets for the game on Monday, July 1, between the Braves and Brooklyn, will be distributed, and fifty tickets for the game on Monday, July 8, between the Red Sox and Cleveland. Half of the one hundred "bombs" will have a single ticket and the others will have two tickets each. All are grandstand seats.

The lucky "fans" will be enabled to witness either or both of these games, according to their run of luck, as the guests of the Boston AMERICAN, [illegible]

Mr. Kipling was right. The female of the species is more deadly than the male. More deadly in earnest, anyhow.

Though greatly outnumbered by the men in the service, the yoegirls have entered sixteen crews in the wherryboat race. And now there will have to be several heats instead of only one to decide the winner.

GIRLS ENTHUSIASTIC.

The determination of the girls to make a good showing and to be the winners even though there is no prize attached is all the more apparent considering that the cutter race, for which a handsome cup is offered to the winner, has attracted only four more crews, twenty in all.

The girls are entered very largely in the swimming and diving contests, too, and there are bound to be some close races as some of the best girl swimmers in the city are working for their Uncle Sam.

So many entries came in long past the hour for filing and have continued to come in that the committee has not yet caught up with them. From a pile of application blanks in which he was buried deep, George V. Brown, director of athletics in the First Naval District, gave forth as his opinion that while he was unable to give complete figures just yet, more swimmers had entered the various races than ever before in any swimming contest in Boston of which he had any knowledge.

At least a dozen whaleboats are entered and several sailing boats for a very attractive prize. With the speed events that have been added from time to time and the numerous entries, the carnival grows greater with each day that passes.

WANT CONTINUATION SCHOOL COMPULSORY

Measures to be taken as the result of 50,000 Massachusetts children under sixteen years of age leaving school this year to enter employment, were discussed by educators before the recess committee on education at the State House.

A Lincoln Pilene of the State Board of Education supported the continuation school system. He urged that four hours a week in such a school was not sufficient, and said the public schools should be made more interesting.

Owen D. Evans, principal of the continuation schools, denied that Boston children under sixteen were becoming delinquent because of war conditions. He urged that continuation schools be made compulsory throughout the State. Arthur W. Holder of Washington urged that every child be taught a trade.

SAILOR ARRAIGNED AS FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE

William G. Dodd, twenty-six, an apprentice aboard the U. S. S. Meade, was arraigned in the East Boston court before Judge Barnes charged with being a fugitive from justice from Baltimore, Md. The case against him was placed on file.

As he left the courtroom he was taken into custody by Lieutenant Detective Maurice King of the Baltimore police who had a warrant for Dodd for non-support of his wife and minor child.

Baby Wins Distinction

Nancy Sprague Pierce, although she only came into the world the other day, has already won distinction for herself, for she is the first baby to be born in the new maternity ward of the Malden Hospital. She is the daughter of Charles Wilder Pierce, an aeroplane inspector in Philadelphia, and Pauline Foster Pierce.

COMMITTED BIGAMY TO ESCAPE SERVICE

New York, June 27.—Indicted by the Grand Jury, Charles Lippman faces trial for bigamy, his confessed offense having been committed to escape army service. He told the Assistant District Attorney that he preferred jail to war. The felony, under the selective service act, exempted him from military duty.

COMMUNITY SINGING FOR WORCESTER'S FOURTH

Worcester, June 27.—Community singing, patriotic speeches and a band concert on the Common is the way Worcester will celebrate the Fourth of July this year. There will be no fireworks. It is also planned to celebrate in a similar manner the first anniversary of the date on which the first Worcester soldiers left for France, July 28, 1917.

Cobb of Boston Plans to Make Gotham Walk at Night

Candidate for the popularity belt of New York City—John Candler Cobb of Boston.

Does Mr. Cobb's name mean anything to New Yorkers?

It does.

In an appeal to the New York Public Service Commission Mr. Cobb of Boston suggests:

That all Manhattan surface lines immediately abolish free transfers.

That all surface cars cease running between 10:30 p. m. and 5:30 a. m.

Mr. Cobb, as representative of the first mortgage adjustment bondholders, urges that no return has been received in these bonds since October 1, 1916, and that the New York Railways Company is unable to pay interest charges on account of great operating expense.

Not more than 10 per cent. of the New York car-riding public would mind the loss of free transfers, Mr. Cobb believes, according to dispatches today from Manhattan.

Also he thinks, by the same dispatches, that pleasure-seekers should be made to realize that we are at war.

HENRY F. LONG IS NOW McCALL'S SECRETARY

GRADUATE AT BEVERLY

Byerly, June 27.—The largest class in its history was graduated this year from Beverly High School. At the graduating exercises 221 diplomas were given out. Mayor McPherson, the principal speaker, addressed the students on their duty in the war.

SEVEN BOSTON TEACHERS TO BE PENSIONED.

Three of seven Boston school teachers who will be retired with pensions tomorrow. Miss Eleanor J. Cashman (left), who has taught for 47 years at the George P. Hoar School, South Boston, Miss Emily M. Pevear (right), first assistant in charge of Mason School, Roxbury, and holder of two records, and (below) Miss Caroline F. Cutler, Wyman School, in city's service 46 years.

By HAZEL BARNES.

An incident which is quite unique and extremely interesting to the city will be the retirement with pensions tomorrow of seven of Boston's teachers, all veterans in the great army of educators.

In one sense their services will end, but in another and more potent sense the good which they have done will live on in the lives of the innumerable girls and boys who have come under their influence during the last half-century which they have been teaching.

They are all of them, keen-eyed and alert, and have kept pace with the times to a remarkable degree, and all are willing to concede that many of the modern methods of education are, for the most part, superior to the ones in vogue when they first began instilling into the prototypes of the Johnnies and Jennies of today a proper respect for the three Rs.

HOLDS TWO RECORDS.

Miss Emily Pevear has two records which she may look upon with great pride. One is that she began teaching in the Boston schools on March 11, 1868, which gives her a record of over fifty years, and the other is the fact that she has never been absent on account of illness for forty years.

She is now the first assistant in charge of the Mason School in Roxbury, with about 450 children in her care. She has two nieces, who are also teachers, and who make their home with her in the fine old house on Dudley street, where she was born seventy years ago.

"The years have been very pleasant ones for me," said Miss Pevear, "and I have never had any occasion to regret a moment. But I am looking forward to being at home very much, and although I am not going to teach any more, the days will be full. I could not bear to be idle. I am far too active for that. So, I shall busy myself with war work, which will take a good deal of me, I assure you. Next Fall, when the schools open again, and I see the little children going by the house to school, I expect that I shall miss my work very much, but now I feel that I have done my share.

GIVEN SURPRISE PARTY.

"My teachers have always made my work very pleasant for me. I was very touched a few weeks ago when they gave me a surprise party at my home. They gave me a friendship pin, set with sapphires and pearls, and we all had an extremely happy time together. It made me feel very happy to think that they were so fond of me."

Jamaica Plain boasts of two such veteran teachers. One, Miss Annie George of the Bowditch school, has forty years of teaching to her credit. The other, Mrs. Caroline F. Cutler, in charge of the Wyman school, who has been in the service of the city for forty-six years, celebrated her seventieth birthday last Monday.

"Just say that all my success is due to my splendid teachers, who have been so loyal to me," was Mrs. Cutler's modest answer to my question, "if would probably never have stayed so long if it had not been for all their kindness and help. Now that I have reached my limit the only thing to do is to go, but I have been very happy here. I have always found that life is full of compensations."

CAN'T BEAR IDLENESS.

"What am I going to do?"

Her blue eyes grew very tender as she said:

"There are two grandchildren in New York, and I can hardly wait until I see them. As I said before life has many compensations."

A teacher in the Noble School in East Boston, Miss Sarah Atwood, lacks but one month in rounding out thirty-four years of service in the public schools, and Miss Margaret Kelley has been a teacher of sewing in the Hyde School in Roxbury for thirty years. Miss Adelaide Badger, also among the retired, and a teacher of English in the Welles Annex in the West End, leaves with forty-one years to her credit.

At the George P. Hoar School in South Boston, Miss Eleanor J. Cashman has taught for forty-seven years. She was born in Boston and graduated from the Normal School. For over thirty years she was a teacher at the Drake School on G street, and some of the youngsters who were pupils then are now teachers themselves. She is a bright, energetic little lady, with cheeks so rosy that she must be the envy of many a young girl in her neighborhood.

TO AID RED CROSS.

"I have seen many changes and the years have brought lots of improvements," she reminisced, "and most of them, I'll have to admit, have been for our own good. My life has been very interesting for me, and I have thoroughly enjoyed it. As for the future, I don't know what it will bring. If there was no war, I should like to travel, but since I can't, I think that I shall devote most of my time to my Red Cross work.

"There will always be plenty of work along those lines to keep me busy."

NEW TEACHERS AT BEVERLY

Beverly, June 27.—Miss Cora Rogers, school teacher, has resigned after eight years' service. Mrs. Thomas E. Stott, formerly a teacher here and who married recently, has been chosen teacher in the Washington school, her husband having gone to Camp Devens. Miss Adaline F. Nickerson and Miss Ida Burnham have been added as teachers, and several transfers have been made.

HOLD MASS MEETING TO BOOM WAR STAMP SALES

Bellingham, June 27.—Bellingham and North Bellingham residents held a big public mass meeting to boost the sale of War Savings Stamps, the music by the Franklin brass band, at which the speakers were Privates William W. Dearborn of the American field service, the Rev. Father Michael J. Lee, pastor of St. Joseph's parish in Medway, and Paul Perin of Weston. Miss Harriet Shipley Read gave patriotic readings.

How You Can Quickly Remove Hairy Growths

(Aids to Beauty)

A well known beauty specialist advises this treatment for the removal of hair from the face. Mix into a paste some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface and after about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and every trace of hair has vanished. This method is quick and entirely safe. To avoid disappointment, however, be sure to get genuine delatone.—Advertisement

GIANTS IN FINAL TODAY

Braves Still Hopeful of Breaking McGraw's Long String of Victories

By NICK FLATLEY.

Hope springs eternal, and the Braves' hopes of beating the Giants were fairly bright today, considering that the McGraws have won some nine in a row. The Giants depart after the pastime, and thoughts of easier competition naturally remove some of the gloom shrouded around the Home of Big Things in the past three days.

Then, too, McGraw has used his three regular remaining pitchers, and must needs today resort to one of his youngsters, or come back with Demaree, which was just about out of the question.

The toga was due to fall on the shoulders of young Mister Causey, and beating him did not stack up as such a tough job.

SHIFT IS ABOUT DUE.

The Braves have been up against some ... in this series, and ... has about arrived for one of the ... sharpshooters to turn in a bad ... Then, also it was Dana Fillingim's turn to perform for the representatives of here, and that has been equal generally to victory.

The Fillingim ... is a trifle off yet, but it has been right along and victories have come fairly easy for the huge ... The young chap is about due to be called for service and is anxious to get in as many games as possible before he changes uniforms.

There's not a bit of doubt that the invasion of the Giants has put a terrible ... in the Brave pennant boom. After the Chicago disaster, the team came back to earth and headed up properly, but the good work of the latter part of the recent home stand has just about been rendered null and void.

UNABLE TO GET STARTED.

Not even the cheers of a bevy as the ... would say, of beauties who were selling Thrift Stamps ... the Braves to a spirit of ... the Giants. Such being ... cause seems hopeless.

With the aforementioned bevy, ... when they were ... the Stallings ... 9-0. It was a ... for another fair ... and there not being a ... Boston brightness anywhere ... in the afternoon ... sporting ... honors that were ... east wind froze up ... remained after the host ... serious attention to ...

There were two real bright spots from a technical standpoint. The pitching of Slim Sallee and the shortstopping of Art Fletcher were things of joy and beauty.

SAME OLD FOUR HITS.

Slim was hit only four times, and the ... close to scoring ... the very last chapter. He ... and that was in the ultimate round likewise. Fletcher accepted thirteen out of fourteen chances, and at least a dozen of them were of the startling variety.

The hawk-faced Giant made all kinds of stops and throws, snowing out Braves with inevitable accuracy. His one error came on a mighty tough chance. Fletch is no youngster ... brilliancy is perennial.

The Giant offensive was very much on the job, assaulting Bunny for eight hits, and Upham, who succeeded, for half a dozen more. Ross Young, a wonderful ball playing youngster, led the attack carrying out four blows for himself two of them being regular triples.

Our old friend, the great Heinie Zimm, though he didn't cut into the base-running competitions, took a piece of the spotlight by blazing out one of the longest bangs in the history of the big ball yard.

$20 FOR HEINIEZIMM.

It was a fifty-buck wallop, for it went sailing into the wind and bumped up against the bull sign on the left field barrier. It was the first time that bulwark was ever dented by a fly ball hit in a game, to the best of our recollection.

The great Heinie also got a couple of other lesser safe ones, thereby keeping up the wild batting rampage he started when he arrivd in our fair city.

If Heinie keeps bumping them, and the New York pitchers persist in flinging shutouts, the Giants will play somebody from the other league in the Fall.

Provided, of course, the draft doesn't beat the World's Series to it.

WILD PITCH BY AMES HANDS GAME TO CUBS

The Cubs won along with the Giants, maintaining their lead of two games over the McGraw clan. Vaughn and Ames had a battle royal, a wild pitch by the latter, following hits by Hollocher and Mann, producing the only run of the matinee.

MILLER HUGGINS SENDS BEDIENT BACK WEST

Miller Huggins, Yankee manager, has returned Hugh Bedient, one of the Red Sox 1914 heroes, to the Toledo club. The Rabbit does not think Hugh has enough to get by successfully in the American League.

ROG. BRESNAHAN IS SLATED TO RUN BROWNS

By H. W. LANIGAN.

Roger Bresnahan, one of John J. McGraw's early heroes in New York, that brilliant baseball chieftain's right bower in the middle and late '90s, is programmed to return to the big show.

Word from St. Louis states that Bresnahan has been selected to go on the job as Fielder Jones' successor as manager of the Browns; that he will sign a contract within the next day or two and take hold of the club by Saturday or Sunday.

It was St. Louis that Bresnahan quit when he got out. Rather, St. Louis quit the Duke, the Brittons paying Rog a bonus to retire before his original five-year contract was up, as they and he were unable to agree in baseball affairs.

HOW TROUBLE STARTED.

Bresnahan gave luckless St. Louis the best Summer's baseball it ever had; a first division outfit, which was in the thick of the fight all the way, and which earned some $160,000 for the Brittons. The trouble started when Rog as big a hustler as a manager as he ever was when a player, was refused $50,000, after making the aforesaid huge bundle, with which to buy talent.

From then on Bresnahan lost interest in the Cardinals and the inevitable happened—he fell out with his employers and got out.

Three years ago Rog purchased the Toledo (American Association) club. That's his home town and was always rated with balldom's winners. Bresnahan made some $12,000 his friends claim, in 1916, his first year in control.

Last year was a lean one, though, and Rog is understood to have dropped that $12,000 and some $8,000 additional. He has another loser this year, in fact it is no sure thing that the circuit sticks it out.

A RIOT IN ST. LOUIS.

However, with Bresnahan back in the big show, and in a city where he has close friends and warm admirers by the hundred, and working for Phil Ball and Otto Stifel, men with bankrolls, he should worry over his Toledo plant.

He was divorced from the big cities just long enough to appreciate that one is only camping out when away from them and he bids fair proving even a bigger riot than ever.

Bresnahan looms up as strictly the proper party to fill Fielder Jones' shoes and his acquisition by the Browns should prove not only a big thing for St. Louis, but for the entire American League circuit as well.

DONNELLAN AND MATES WALLOP ENGLISH HIGH

The Medford High School nine proved its class when it routed English High on the Fulton Street Grounds, Medford, 12-2. James Prior had matters all his own way in his duel with Al Kroog. The Medford southpaw held tight in all pinches, making the bulk of English's twelve hits go to waste.

Donnellan, with four hits, topped Medford's artillery. Kelly, John Prior, Sanford and Gillis also smote the ball hard. Meirick, with two triples and a single was English's swat hero. The score.

FRED MITCHELL LANDS MASTER CYRUS BARGER

Chicago, June 27.—Manager Mitchell of the Cubs announces the purchase of Pitcher Cy Barger of the Memphis (Southern Association) club. He will report for duty Saturday. Barger filled a long engagement with the Brooklyn Dodgers and also [illegible] forth in the Federal League.

Corbett's Corner

By JAMES J. CORBETT.

"They never come back!"

That's one of sportdom's favorite expressions which is shattered by frequent happenings in every field of athletic endeavor.

Jake Daubert of the Dodgers was labelled as "all in" during the 1917 season. His legs were reported as "gone" and his batting eye was "dimmed forever." And now in 1918 A. D. this same "baseball wreck" is smiting beyond the 300 mark, fielding in brilliant fashion and traveling the baselines at express train speed.

Hal Chase was sold by the Yanks to the White Sox, played in only so-so fashion for them and then Hal jumped to the Feds. He played good base ... there but when the Feds quit operations Hal was jobless.

His Fed owners tried to sell him to some major league club. Garry Herrmann decided to take a chance on him.

"Don't do it," Garry was advised. "That guy is all through."

But Garry bought Hal—and Hal led the National League swatsmiths in 1916 and today is ranked as one of the greatest of first basemen.

CRAVATH ALSO A COMEBACK.

"Cactus" Cravath was labelled "all through" by the major league clubs of 1909. So he went to the minors, lingered there for three seasons and then performed a startling "comeback" with the Phillies. Just the other day Cravath eclipsed the circuit clouting record of Hans Wagner by hitting out his 101st homer.

Larry Doyle was classed as "through" when the 1918 season came along, and almost everybody who is anybody in baseball said right out loud that Fred Merkle's day was done.

But right now Doyle is one of the leading swatsmiths in the National with 428 and Merkle is close up with 375 or so.

After hitting beyond 300 for eleven seasons, the mighty Lajoie slumped to 299 in 1907 and dropped to 289 in 1908.

"Larry's through," the wise ones announced.

And then Larry showed 'em up with .324 in 1909, 384 in 1910, 365 in 1911, .368 in 1912 and 335 in 1913.

A FEW OTHER CASES.

Jack Coombs, discarded by Connie Mack in 1914, is now one of the Dodgers' mainstays. Rube Marquard, through 1916, 1917 and again this season, is classed among the best left handers in John Tener's league, although in 1915 John McGraw turned him adrift.

Jim Vaughn, the most dependable twirler in the Cubs' roster, was pronounced "all in" by the Yankees and Senators in 1912, and was shooed off to the minors.

Leon Ames, given the gate by the Giants and Reds, is starring for the Cards.

Those are only a few of the hundred and more baseball comebacks.

A racehorse breaks down.

"They don't come back," assert the wise ones. But they're wrong. Turf history is rich with stories of "comebacks" of horses thought to be "all in," which, under intelligent handling and aided by a rest, performed the supposedly unexpected.

RACEHORSES LIKE ATHLETES.

Among the most famous comebacks was that of Old Rosebud. As a two-year-old he was a champion.

In one of the early races of his three-year-old career he broke down. It seemed that he would be crippled permanently.

In 1917 the champion of champions on the American turf was Old Rosebud! With a mended leg and the benefit of a long vacation, Old Rosebud came back, tussled with the speediest and most perfect horses in training—and he beat them all!

In 1901, and again in 1902, William A. Larned won the National Tennis championship. Five seasons elapsed—and Larned failed to regain his title.

The "they don't come back" element wore "I told you so" expressions. But in 1907 Larned won not only the National Championship, but also the all-comers' title and followed these victories by successfully defending the National Championship through 1908, 1909, 1910 and 1911.

ONLY FEW GIVEN A CHANCE.

Frank Gotch won the wrestling championship from Tom Jenkins. He gave Jenkins a return bout—and Jenkins got back his crown. Then Gotch lured Jenkins into another match and turned the tables. Later Gotch was defeated by Fred Beell. Given a chance against his conqueror a few weeks later, Gotch came back and regained his crown.

"Comebacks" in the boxing game are rarities largely because the conquerers seldom give the beaten king a fair chance to regain his title.

Johnny Kilbane never gave Abe Attell a return match. Willie Ritchie ... repeatedly to secure a ... bout with Freddie Welsh ... won from him in London. But Freddie murmured "nix."

Joe Gans got a chance against Battling Nelson but by that time the great negro was a consumptive. Freddie Welsh lost to Benny Leonard more than a year ago—and has never had a ... trial.

Stanley Ketchel ... the "they don't comeback" expression an awful jolt. Billy Papke knocked ... out ... September 1908 taking the middleweight championship from him.

Billy gave Stanley a return match about two months later and Ketchel regained the title by knocking out Papke in eleven rounds.

Many of them will come back again, if they only get the chance.

DONOVAN RULES FAVORITE OVER LARRY BURNS

By RINGSIDE.

The Ted (Kid) Lewis-Tommy Robson bout being a matter of history, boxing fans will now turn their attention to the meeting tomorrow night at the Commercial A. C. between Johnny Donovan and Larry Burns, South Boston rivals.

Great local interest is being taken in this scrap, and as both boys are popular and have large followings, the Green street club should play to a packed house.

The lightweight championship of South Boston goes with the verdict. Burns has been in the game longer than his rival and has been up against some stiff game. Donovan, however, seems to be the favorite to win.

Walter Butler, Revere Bearcat, meets a tartar in Johnny Martin, providing the latter's record means anything. It shows two wins over Walter Mohr and Chick West, as well as a victory over Willie Beecher.

Eddie Barcelli is confident he will turn the tables on Gerard Giann, in the semi-final. Young Viera and Charles Parker, ex-amateur will renew acquaintances in the first six-rounder. They met last week, Parker winning after a stiff encounter.

ARMY TRAINING IS PRAISED BY FULLERTON

Noted Expert Says Many New Athletic Stars Have Been Discovered Since War Outbreak

By HUGH S. FULLERTON.

Training and ... of athletes by various ... has been argued for years ... we Americans ... discovered the finest system of ... in the ...

That the new system of training, which has been evolved since the formation of the National Army, will produce the largest crop of the finest athletes the world ever has known seems to me a certainty.

Already its effects are showing. It is not simply that the army and navy have drawn the best of our youth but the training for the trade of war is developing athletes among fellows who never suspected their own abilities, and this is especially true among ballplayers.

When the war is over all a scout will have to do is to pick out the players he wants and make a great team.

GOWDY LAUDS SYSTEM.

Hank Gowdy first called my attention to the development of the player and the improvement in condition.

"I used to think I was in perfect condition after a Spring training trip," he remarked after three months in the army, "but I didn't know what condition was. I'm faster, in better shape, could stand more and play better now than at any time I was in baseball, and the same is true of every fellow I know who has taken the army training.

"If ball players trained this way we'd have few bad arms or legs and we'd have a lot more speed."

Recently Lieutenant Leon Cadore came back on furlough and pitched two games for Brooklyn, pitching better than in a long time.

"I hardly have played ball," he remarked. "Just enough to keep in shape and keep the arm limbered up, but I'm in such great condition I could work every day almost without hurting myself at all, and my arm is better than it has been in years.

"I'm faster, stronger, and better all round. We'll have plenty of ball players when the war is over, because this is the way to develop and train them."

HEARS FROM "GRANT" RICE.

Every fellow in the ranks with whom I have talked feels the same way and a few days ago I heard from Grantland Rice and got a further surprise. Grant used to be a corking baseball and football man down at Nashville, Tenn., both in college and later, but that was a dozen or more years ago.

He has, it is true, kept in fair shape for a newspaper man working nights because he is one of the best golfers in the country, but his baseball days seemed over. But a couple of weeks ago old Grant went out and played with his battery team against that of another regiment. He played second base and played it like an Evers.

Wally Trumbull, Grant's old chum, who quit a New York paper to go into service and now is a lieutenant, saw the game and he wrote that Grant was big league caliber right now and urged the scouts to seize him.

"He grabbed everything in sight," Wally reports. "He made one stop while sliding toward first base and threw the runner out while standing on one ear."

Grant is past thirty-five, an age at which most professional players are done, and yet Wally says he is better than he ever was. In other words, it looks as if the military training would add half a dozen or so years to the career of a ball player.

CAPT. VOLO LANDS 2:14 TROT AT WOONSOCKET

Woonsocket, R. I., June 27.—Capt. Volo annexed the 2.14 trot, the feature event at the Fair Grounds reeling it off in three straight heats. Baron Marion came through in the 2.14 pace. Silver King and Minnequa Boy each took a heat in this event.

The Sunshine Stables scored another first in the 2.26 trot when Colin Campbell beat his field. Rosa Watts, after winning the second heat, was set back for swerving in the stretch run.

Today's free-for-all brought together B. M., Earl Jr., Andy Ashland and James Albert. The 2.17 pace and 2.17 trot complete the card. The bay mare, Vonia Guy, a Sunshine Stable performer, will make her first appearance of the season in the latter class.

BALTIMORE PUTS BAN ON HEAVYWEIGHT BOUT

Baltimore, June 27.—The official ban was placed definitely upon the Fred Fulton-Jack Dempsey twenty-round mill. The Board of Police Commissioners announced that with the exception of those boxing contests for which permits have already been issued, no bouts will be held in Baltimore.

The promoters had previously secured a permit to hold the battle July 4, but were compelled to postpone it until July 13. The police claim this permit will be void unless the fight is held Independence Day, and that if any outside promoters are known to be connected with it, it will be stopped anyhow.

ONLY THREE PELICANS ARE TO JOIN RED SOX

From New Orleans comes word that the Minneapolis (American Association) club, not the Red Sox, get Outfielder Edmondson. His sale to the Millers is announced by President Heineman of the Pelicans. Infielders Red Bluhm, Jack Stansbury and Walter Barbare are to report to Manager Barrow tomorrow in Washington.

RED SOX BATTLE TO KEEP IN THE LEAD

New York Yankees Again Threaten to Dethrone Boston as League Pacemakers

New York, June 27.—It behooved the Red Sox to flop the Yankees in today's pastime on the Polo Grounds, the final one of the quartet, if they were to continue setting the pace in this hectic American League race.

Slim Love shaded Carl Mays in a tidily-played battle on the Harlem lawn yesterday, gaining the verdict, 3 to 1. The blows were four off Love and six off Mays, and, as the Huggins clan uncorked a perfect fielding performance, the Barrow entrant didn't have a chance to sidestep defeat.

Mays had pitched thirty-two consecutive scoreless innings up to the second chapter, when the Yankees penetrated his defence for two runs and the victory.

MAYS' ROW OF BLANKS.

Starting June 8, Mays held Cleveland hitless in the last four innings. He then pitched nine-inning shutouts against Chicago, St. Louis and Philadelphia, and had started to wield the white brush, but his hopes were blasted when his slab contemporary, Love, pasted a double in the second inning and drove two mates across the plate.

Ruth continued his devastation to half his customary output, his double in the ninth blazing the trail to the only Sox tally. On his other three appearances at bat Battering Babe tapped meek infield grounders.

Love held the Red Sox in check from the outset and up to the ninth had allowed only two hits. Ruth, first up in the last gasp, tried heroically to plant the ball in the right field stands but failed by a few feet and got a double. McInnis followed with a single scoring Babe.

It looked like a genuine rally, but Heinie Wagner unfortunately lined to Pratt whose throw to Pipp doubled Stuffy off first. Whiteman lifted to Marsans for the final out.

OLD HEINIE IN GAME.

Wagner got into the game in the eighth. He replaced Fred Thomas when the youngster injured his hand ... after Peck's grounder. Thomas got his hand ... before he retired from the game.

Mays ... a crafty game, yielding only six hits but he was unlucky in that half of these were clustered in the fatal second inning. Pipp opened the disastrous session with a single. Bodie did the conventional sacrifice act, Schang to McInnis.

Marsans singled and Pipp was cut down trying to score, Hooper to Schang to Thomas to Scott to Mays, who guarded home plate while the run-up was in motion.

Hannah was passed so Mays could get a whack at Love. The strategy did not pan out, for Love doubled to centre, scoring Marsans and his battery mate.

Gilhooley fouled to Schang, but the damage had been done.

GEORGE WILEY RETAINS HIS $5 PER DAY PRIZE

George Wiley, diminutive Syracuse, N. Y., motor-pace flyer, retained his hold on the Brassard, worth $5 per day, by disposing of Victor Linart and Vincent Madonna in their three-cornered battle at the Revere saucer. Wiley negotiated 43 miles and 3 laps in the hour's riding. He was given a stiff tussle by Linart, winning only by five yards.

John Farding took the one-mile professional and Leo Maggioli annexed the half mile amateur handicap.

Peace-Dreams and War-Dreams

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1918, by International News Service

LOVE perched on top of the back of the peace-dream girl's chair. And he piped sugary trills and candy tunes, and all the dream she saw was a rosy fancy of girl and boy, the tinkle and tum of a stringed player, blue skies and cream clouds, blowing roses, idle hands and perhaps poetry in the sun.

The EAGLE of America grips the top of her chair now when she wearily dreams. He broods a bea[illegible]ed, screaming head above hers—the fluffy, frivolous head of this darling woman of our land, who finds she has something in that head after all—his wings shadow her, his golden eyes command! He shrieks exultant, calling where once Love piped. And she dreams strange visions of a tide of dust-brown, flowing to France under the painted green-blue of steel helmets, the fluttering, articulate flag overhead, gray clouds, the pulse of drums, the cr[illegible]ng of fifes and "Yankee-Doodle" played again! And there are no idle hands in this dream.

But somehow Love's voice is heard underneath in a thin, sweet song, for among all the socks she knits are some for the Boy who tummed and tinkled the guitar in the peace-dream gone by! NELL BRINKLEY.

Cecilia of the Pink Roses

Released by Select Pictures Corporation

What Has Gone Before

Little Cecilia Madden, daughter of poor parents, wanders along Broadway and stops to admire some pink roses in a florist's window. Her enraptured attention attracts the notice of passers-by and noticeably increases the sale of the flowers within. The florist calls her and gives her a rose, in spite of her protest that she would prefer a pink rose for her invalid mother. As roses are selling at fifty cents apiece, he tells her to run along. She finds her invalid mother much worse. Meanwhile, Jerry, the nine-year-old boy, can think only of the fact that he is hungry. Cecilia does all she can to comfort her mother, and her father tries in vain to persuade a well-known physician to visit the Madden home.

By Ann Lisle.

(Novelized from the motion picture drama, "Cecilia of the Pink Roses," directed by Julius Steger, produced by the Marion Davies Film Company, Inc., from the book by Katharine Haviland Taylor, Copyright, 1917, by George H. Doran Company.)

(Copyright, 1918, Marion Davies Film Co., Inc.)

A FLUNKEY in a uniform which would have kept the Madden family in luxury for months opened the door. Jerry rushed by him without once suspecting that the footman had for a second contemplated slamming the door in the beggar's face.

At the door of the waiting room Jerry hesitated a moment.

The place looked like a cathedral and he felt he ought to have on his Sunday black to enter it.

A pretty little girl came running into the room. She flounced over to the white linen clad nurse and whispered importantly with an eye to the admiration of the bored people who welcomed any diversion, most of all a pretty little girl with flashing brown eyes.

"Mother of God! Shure and have you sent me a sign?" said Jerry, crossing himself quietly. "Just the size of my little Cecilia." He crossed the room and smiled ingratiatingly at the child. "What's your name, little girl?" he asked.

Miss Van Dorn drew herself up with a supreme hauteur which twelve can sometimes compass. "I am Miss Gertrude Frelinghuysen Van Dorn, and it isn't proper to address people unless you've been introduced. Besides, folks like you should go around to the side door—the tradesmen's entrance."

The well-bred people in the office tittered or sneered in inverse ratio to their kindness of heart. Jerry sunk away and sat with sinking heart awaiting his turn. At last the nurse nodded to him superciliously and he was permitted to enter the doctor's office.

Jerry Explains

"Mister," he explained patiently, "it's me wife I come about. My doc he ses as no one can save her but you. It's cancer of the stomach she has and suffers something horrible. 'He's the cancer man of New York,' ses my doc, speaking of you. For Gawd's sake, doctor, save my Mary—I can't pay you now, but I'll work my fingers to the bone."

Dr. Van Dorn had been up all of the night before with a patient who had rewarded him by dying of cancer in the stomach. His faith in himself and his God-given gift was at that moment at low ebb. So was his humanity. He swung about with an air of dismissal, and Jerry studied the back of his head and the mahogany swivel chair.

"My time is very full," said the doctor. "I have more work than I can conscientiously attend to. Your doctor is a good man. If he can't save her probably she's doomed anyway. Tell him to call me on the telephone and I'll go over the case with him."

"Couldn't you come with me doc? It would hearten my Mary just to see the firm figure of a man you are."

Doctor Van Dorn's cold eye twinkled. Those Irish were a blarneying lot; there was something about them now. . . . He got to his feet whether in acceptance or dismissal Jerry never knew, for just then the little girl with flashing brown eyes came flouncing into the office. "Miss Hempstead said there was nobody with you but this person. Daddy I've waited to see that your supper's right. Please come eat it now, dear, and Gertrude will have her crackers and milk and strawberries with you. See I've a tiny pink Killarney, rosebud for your buttonhole. Now I I make you all fine [illegible] and send this man away and we'll have supper."

A Pink Rose

"A Killarney! A pink rose! Sure and doctor it's the wife's favorite. Herself she do be loving the pink roses. Come with me doctor [illegible]"

Little Gertrude [illegible] slipped her hand in her father's [illegible] her cal[illegible] against the Irishman's wheedling.

"Run along my man. The poor are extravagant in their tastes. You can't afford pink roses and you have no right to want to afford the most expensive doctor [illegible] home and tell your physician to phone me. That's the best I can do for you."

Little Gertrude Van Dorn smiled tri[illegible] [illegible] Do you re[illegible] We [illegible] and an [illegible] young woman [illegible] and [illegible] was as repu[illegible] as [illegible] were [illegible] she was twelve.

Women in War Work

By Elizabeth Ellam,

Special Agent, United States Employment Service, Department of Labor.

SIX women have enrolled in the Summer course for employment managers that has opened just this week at Harvard University. It is the first time in the history of the college that women have enrolled for such a course. Who they are, or where they came from, is an insignificant item, compared to what they represent.

They represent the general women movement in the industrial world today; they represent the keen desire of the feminine mind to be ready for the big emergency that is approaching. They represent the women of the world who have brains enough to see that they must be ready for their Big Job when the call comes and not sit quietly gossiping on their front porches, while the country calls for them.

Women in this country are awakening to the situation, but so far they have not become quickened to the full appreciation of the necessity for woman labor as has England across the sea. We have not yet become so accustomed to the presence of women in the fields that we do not stare at them when we encounter them in our country rambles.

Women who run elevators, even though they do it in the most quiet, unobtrusive, businesslike manner in the world, are an occasion for the sibilant whispering of many other women, as they ride up and down in the cars. Women as crossing tenders, as car cleaners, as machinists and mechanics—all these are coming. The vanguard is here. Be ready for the call when it comes.

There is another call coming today to the women who have been active workers, but who have been automatically retired into the second-line trenches, by marriage. Some of these women were efficient trained nurses, and their efficiency has not been one bit impaired by their marital experiences.

The call today is for them to go into the hospitals again, to release the women who can go, unencumbered overseas, to bring the wonderful blessing and healing of the Red Cross nurse to the wounded in France. One patriotic woman, who heads the suffrage branch in Waltham, has given her services for the Summer to the Boston Floating Hospital. Her patriotic action may be followed by many more, it is hoped, who will answer the call in this country, even though they may not do so abroad.

Dear Miss Ellam—I am thinking of training to be a nurse and would appreciate it very much if you could answer the following questions.

a—What is the earliest date one could enter the Massachusetts General Hospital?

b—What educational training is required?

c—What is the period of training, and salary, if any?

d—What is the equipment provided by the pupil nurse?

I have passed the Red Cross Home Nursing, First Aid and Surgical Dressings course, and I wonder if they would help me to obtain an entrance to a hospital? (MISS) K. E. P.

West Lynn.

If you will write to Miss Helen Wood, acting superintendent of the Massachusetts General Hospital, you will receive full information regarding requirements, equipment and application blanks as well.

At the same time, may I suggest that you ask Miss Wood, too, regarding enrollment for the training school for nurses to be opened very soon in connection with the base hospital at Camp Devens at Ayer. This is a patriotic call, and Miss Wood is in charge of enrolling nurses. In this particular case I should think that the previous training that you have had might be of real value.

son "fans" [illegible] made me indignant. Stevenson, who stricken with a mortal ailment, [illegible] the lives of innumerable men and women brighter by his matchless art, that is not to be mentioned in the same sentence with the "professional" glad vaporings.

So I am sure the lady from Boston wasn't a professional "gladster." When things happened to try her patience, she probably didn't go in for any handclapping or glad grimacing. I dare say she was just human about it.

Children and "Grown-ups"

And doubtless she entered into the spirit of play with those six children and didn't feel a moment older than any of them when the fun and romping were going on.

When people have been given the inestimable blessing of children, isn't it better to enter into the spirit of their play and fun than to stand aloof like an angry deity watching for their smallest offences that they may be punished? If parents would only love more and punish less, there would be so much less of a parent-and-child problem to face through the coming years.

The Last Straw

A new skirt had just come home from the dressmaker's, and Mrs. Hickerby put it on at once. It seemed to her altogether too short, but in view of the present fashions she thought she would see what her husband thought of it. She entered the library, and Mr. Hickerby looked up from his work with a frown. "I wonder," said the wife, with an embarrassed laugh, "if these awfully short skirts will ever go out?" "Not with me!" was the decided answer.

SHARK MAKES FINE FOOD

THE United States Bureau of Fisheries urges the American people to try shark as food. In Britain, Norway and Sweden the shark is much eaten. The meat is white, resembling halibut and compares favorably in food value with other staple food fishes and meats.

BOILED SHARK.

Three pounds shark, 1 onion, 1 carrot, ¼ glass vinegar, 1 tablespoonful salt, few grains of pepper, little thyme, 1 bay leaf, 1 clove.

Cut the shark into fine pieces and place in a kettle with the onion and carrot, both sliced. Add the vinegar and seasoning. Cover with water, bring to a boil and keep boiling slowly for twenty minutes. Drain and place on a platter. Serve with either a cream sauce or any other sauce, such as caper, hollandaise, anchovies, etc.

BROILED SHARK MAITRE D'HOTEL

Two pounds shark, 2 ounces butter, 1 tablespoonful parsley, little nutmeg, juice 1 lemon.

Cut the shark into steaks. Dip into sweet butter or [illegible] and cook on broiling irons. When well done remove and place on hot platter.

MAITRE D'HOTEL SAUCE

Melt the butter, add the chopped parsley, nutmeg and lemon juice. Pour over the fish just before serving.

FRIED SHARK, NEW ENGLAND STYLE.

Two pounds shark, ½ cupful fine cornmeal, ½ pound fat salt pork, 1 lemon, few sprigs parsley, salt and pepper to taste.

Cut the fish as usual, season well with salt and pepper, and roll in the cornmeal. Fry the fat salt pork in a shallow frying pan, and when crisp remove and keep hot. Place the fish in the pan and fry a nice brown on both sides. Serve on hot platter, with the salt pork over it, and garnish with parsley and slices of lemon.

SHARK SAUTE MEUNIERE

Two pounds shark, 2 ounces butter, ½ cupful flour, 2 lemons, few sprigs parsley.

Cut the fish into slices one-half inch thick, season well with salt and pepper, roll in flour and fry in butter. Remove from the pan and place on a hot platter. Squeeze the juice of 1 lemon over it, add a little more butter in the pan and when it stops foaming and is a light brown color, pour over the fish. Sprinkle with chopped parsley and serve very hot with quartered lemon.

Hustling Times

"You're looking miserable, Bailey. Why don't you ask a doctor what ails you?" "I know what ails me—rapid consumption." "You don't mean it?" "I do. I have to bolt my breakfast in two gulps to catch the train, and my lunch in two more to get back to the office!"

Moral Suicide

A SERIAL OF EAST AND WEST

"SHE sold out cheap," ended Rodman bitterly. "Uncle Hubert saved me from her. Yes, the Conny Beaver of six years ago is Mrs. Richard Covington today. It was the great, ugly blunder of my boyhood. I've never stopped regretting it. Tonight I feel as if I could give ten years of my life to undo it."

"I think I can help you undo it, Rodman. We'll hurry over to the house and I'll talk to Beatrice," said Lucy. "You wait here while George and I act as your ambassadors."

Going With You

"I'm going with you, Lu. You're a dear sister, and I'm sure your help will save me if anything can. But I myself must plead with Beatrice. She must forgive me—not yield to you."

Together Rodman and Lucy hastened across the distance that separated the two houses. In the library they found Covington and his wife. The man was oblivious to everything in the world but Fay and her charms.

Then the door opened, and Waverly burst into the room—a Waverly suddenly brave and unafraid.

"Father, I've just come from Beatrice's room—it's empty," he cried.

Drugged by Fay Hope's embraces, Covington looked at his son with dumb indifference. "Oh, she's gone, is she—well I told her to."

"You told her to?" moaned Rodman Lan[illegible]; "you can't mean that, sir?"

"She insulted my wife—the woman I honor. I sent her away. She'll come cringing back when her money is spent, and when she is ready to honor a woman who has made a brave struggle against the world," said Covington, pompously.

"You can't mean it, sir—you can't mean it," moaned Rodman.

Then he caught Fay Hope's eyes. They were fixed on him malignantly. Challenging him from their depths were mocking reminders of what had driven Beatrice from home.

Six months may seem an eternity or a moment! It depends entirely on the heart of the measurer of time. The six months that followed were a world-long age of torture to Beatrice and Rodman; to Waverly they were a period of struggle with dark forces he did not understand. To Fay they meant a brief period of [illegible] triumph and of [illegible] toward a happy future with [illegible] Travers. To Travers [illegible] they were one protracted [illegible] of sneering at [illegible] Covington and robbing him systematically.

Covington himself went through days and weeks of what seemed to him youth renewed, joy incarnate—perfect happiness. He had Fay, and love!

Covington's old customers were slipping away from him one by one. His clerk Selby had announced his marriage to little Helen Manners and had betaken his efficient self and the best little stenographer Covington had ever known from the office. Stocks had depreciated, loans became [illegible] harder to secure.

Memories of Beatrice haunted her father [illegible] he became more worried about business. It sounds as if the measure of his unhappiness and torment were full to overflowing [illegible] he had Fay and love; he persuaded himself that he was content. [illegible] after years Covington remembered those months with horror.

Rodman struggled vainly to find some trace of the girl who had walked down the path to her father's gate [illegible] and so out of the knowledge of all who knew her. When detective agencies failed to discover any trace of her whereabouts, [illegible] published in papers throughout the country brought [illegible], then Rodman began to despair. Death itself seemed the only solution.

On that very day, Lucky Travers' old friend [illegible] returned to San Francisco. He [illegible] interesting tidings to bring to the ex-gambler. There was work to be done in New York—work that [illegible] very well. Dulcey whispered what that work was.

"By Jove! I'll have to get away and clean up some of those easy marks," laughed Travers. "I think Fay has landed about all that's coming to her here, we ought to be with you in a very short time. Keep a place for me. Fay and I will hit the little old New York trail in a week or so," promised Travers.

He was not the first to neglect a simple old saying. "Man proposes——"

A New Game

That was what the day meant to Travers—the opening of new vistas of shameful gain. To Covington it meant the opening of new vistas of shameful loss. The bank would not discount his notes; all his best customers had left him. His daughter had been driven from home by his own cruelty—perhaps she was dead. He was a ruined man, but he still had Fay—Fay and her "love."

He kept his fears locked in his own heart and daily he looked across the glorious Golden Gate, wondering if it had a secret locked under its waters. If he had told his fears to Waverly, the boy might have comforted him a bit, for he knew that his sister's promise was sacred—Beatrice had said she would come back some day.

Fay filled the great mansion of which she was mistress with the drinking, gambling friends she had made by force of natural selection and the attractions of affinities. Society kept her an outsider. But the "rank outsiders" were ready to take her into their society.

HELP SHORTAGE STILL ACUTE IN NITRO

Many Positions Are Still Open In West Virginia Township

By THOMAS F. PHELAN,
United States Farm Labor Agent.

Come on, you athletes, here is a chance of a lifetime to get in good condition. Uncle Sam wants to win this war. He needs your services. He is willing to hire 1,000 men of the unskilled labor class to work for him at Nitro, W. Va.

It may be necessary to use a pick and shovel. But that ought to be no drawback to a man who wants work and lays claim to being an athlete. Some of the best men in the country did that sort of work, and got their start in life from the inspiration derived therefrom. It is the best form of exercise in the world. It has been aptly termed a "complete outdoor gymnasium."

Think of the chance of filling your lungs with pure ozone while toiling with the pick and a shovel. A nervous man will not be affected with insomnia if he accepts such a position. One of our New York millionaires got his health back by toiling with a pick and shovel in the open country.

NITRO NEEDS MEN.

The AMERICAN Farm Labor Bureau at the office of the United States Employment Service, No. 53 Canal street, Boston, has been asked to round up these men and send them on to Nitro. The government is building quite a munition plant there. There is a shortage of labor of the unskilled class. Wages are paid at the rate of $4.12 a day. Reports from Nitro show that some laborers earn as high as $36 a week when the overtime is considered. All who accepted jobs there say it is very congenial. The ground is very soft, and, what is more, the hours slip by rapidly. A laborer who has been earning $36 weekly at Nitro says he never felt better in his life. So, if you are a laboring man or an athlete and want to do Uncle Sam a good turn, sign up for one of these jobs. Applicants should apply to the AMERICAN farm labor agent or W. J. Burke at the Canal street office. Remember, the AMERICAN Labor Bureau is at the latter place, and not No. 80 Summer street.

FARMERS AT OFFICE.

Several farmers from New Hampshire will be at the Canal street office today to engage men willing to work on their places for $40 and $50 a month and board and room. Experienced milkers and poultry men are also wanted. Men willing to work cutting hay during the months of July and August are also wanted. A considerable number of men are also wanted yet in the wheat belt in Oklahoma. Persons wishing to go there for employment should address H. C. Allen, No. 803 East Douglas avenue, Wichita, Kansas. The wages run from $4 to $5 a day, with plenty of overtime. The cutting season starts there next week.

In spite of the great organization built up by the United States Employment Service in the last few months, it is believed there are still hundreds of thousands of farmers who are still ignorant of the help it can give during the "peakload" period of the summer months.

BAD DETOUR IN MAINE FEDERAL HIGHWAY

By C. F. DONNOCKER.

There is probably no more loyal body of people than New Englanders. They take a pride in their States and what their respective States and cities are doing. Maine is no exception to this rule. She has a beautiful country for motoring and invites autoists from other States to tour over her highways, but there seems to be a lack of co-operation somewhere in the matter of information about road conditions.

A certain well-known motorist of Boston recently had occasion to use the Federal Highway between Portland and Brunswick, which is the main road to Bar Harbor, Rockland and Bangor and found a very bad detour at Yarmouth which was very poorly posted so that drivers were into the sand and ditches before they were aware of it. Some cars broke springs and were lucky to get off as light as that.

Indeed the condition of this stretch of road is so bad that motorists intending to go east of Brunswick should avoid it, going by the way of Gray and Lewiston even if it is much longer.

The A. L. A. of Boston and private individuals of this city have written for information about roads and have been unable to even get a reply. Certainly if Maine wishes her State to be a popular one for tourists to go to, this condition ought not to exist and information concerning the condition of roads ought to be sent to all the metropolitan papers and it surely would be published. A little co-operation between the road supervisors and the Maine Automobile Association should solve the problem.

SCHOOL FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN REOPENS SEPT 30

Application to enter crippled children, not fitted for attendance at public schools, may now be made at the Industrial School for Crippled Children, at No. 241 St. Botolph street. The school closed last Friday but will reopen on September 30, this school accomplishes much for crippled children. Primary and grammar school instruction is given with varied manual training. There are departments for instruction in typesetting and printing for graduates of grammar schools. There will also be a trade school class in sewing for girls over fourteen if the demand warrants it.

A nurse is always in attendance and a dinner is served at noon. Motor buses are also provided to call for and return children who are otherwise unable to get to and from the school.

PAY TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF A. SHUMAN

Tributes to the memory of the late A. Shuman, whose funeral is to be held tomorrow at noon from the family home at No. 90 Commonwealth avenue, are offered today by Mayor Peters and the trustees of the Boston City Hospital. Mayor Peters said:

"The death of Mr. Shuman takes from our city one of the most prominent of its citizens. He was a man who gave unselfishly of his time and his best efforts in serving our people.

"As a member of the board of trustees of the City Hospital he served that institution for thirty-three years and for twenty-six years he was president of the board. Under his care the institution was developed to the prominent position it now occupies among the hospitals of the country. Every citizen will mourn his loss, especially those who knew him personally."

The Board of Trustees of the City Hospital adopted resolutions as follows:

"It is with a keen sense of personal loss, as well as profound sorrow, that we learn of the death of our friend and fellow-trustee, A. Shuman.

"The close of a long and useful life has come, and in his passing to his rest the Boston City Hospital has lost a faithful and conscientious counsellor. A man of high executive ability, skillful in the direction of this great institution, with which he was connected for thirty-three years, the last twenty-six of which he was president of its board of trustees. To his untiring zeal and earnest effort much of the success and prestige enjoyed by this hospital is due. During his long career he was foremost in the work of bringing this institution to its present high level. In 1885, on his entrance to this board, the hospital consisted of a group of ten buildings. At the present time this number has been increased to over fifty.

"As a public spirited citizen, as a wise counsellor, as a man eminent in the business world, as a lover of humanity, happy in doing good, this community has benefited by his being a part of it, and he will be greatly missed by those who had the pleasure of close association with him and profited by his judgment and advice.

"We therefore desire to express our profound sorrow at his death and to offer our tribute of respect to his memory. We extend to his bereaved family our sincere sympathy.

"Resolved, That these resolutions be spread on the records of the Boston City Hospital and a copy of the same be sent to the family.

(Signed)

JOSEPH P. MANNING,
THOMAS A. FORSYTH,
HENRY S. ROWEN,
GEORGE G. SEARS."

FAIR AND WARMER TO FOLLOW CHILLY DAY

Jack Frost is beating a slow and reluctant retreat. Although Bostonians shivered today, and commuters cowered in open trolley cars on their way to business, a rising temperature is predicted for tomorrow. Fair weather tonight and tomorrow is in prospect, with moderate easterly winds becoming southerly. Yesterday's storm which struck the middle coast has moved eastward toward the ocean. New England's lowest temperature today was 54, at Eastport, Me., and Northfield, Vt., and her highest 60 at Nantucket.

URGE SOUTHERN N. E. ROAD AS WAR MOVE

Construction of the Southern New England Railway, work on which was abandoned as a result of the agreement reached by the Boston & Maine and Grand Trunk in 1912, is the aim of a campaign which has been started by the Providence Chamber of Commerce. The commercial body maintains that the line should be built as a war measure.

As orginally planned, the Southern New England was to run from the Central Vermont tracks through Palmer and Blackstone into Providence, thereby furnishing New England a new outlet to tidewater and providing with its Grand Truck connections a through line to the west and northwest.

The Providence commercial body has adopted resolutions, which have been sent to federal officials in charge of railroad administration, urging the necessity of the road at this time. The Chamber asserts that Providence is now served by only one line, which, because of the universal manufacture and shipment of munitions and other war supplies, is badly congested.

The road is already 65 per cent. completed, it is said, and could be put into operation at comparatively small expense. With it goods could be moved from Chicago to New England in ten days, it is declared, whereas now it takes two months. The Rhode Island members of Congress are asked to aid in the project.

The Southern New England was well on its way to completion, and would have supplied active competition for the New Haven and the Boston & Maine, but for the death of Charles M. Hays, president of the Grand Trunk, who was lost on the Titanic. His successor was opposed to carrying out the scheme.

NEW HAMPSHIRE MEN AT CAMP DEVENS

Reached There Today 700 Strong—Vermont's 400 Expected Tomorrow

By WILLIAM FLYNN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, June 26.—Seven hundred draftees from New Hampshire arrived today and when the 400 from Vermont are checked in tomorrow this cantonment will have received its complete quota in the present increment of the draft. The New Hampshire men went into the depot brigade along with the men from Massachusetts and Maine, who were receiving their physical examinations today in the personnel station at the base hospital.

Aside from the officers, the permanent personnel, the barracks and the tents, the depot brigade hardly resembles a military organization. It has been practically stripped of all of its good enlisted men whose places have been taken by the soldiers rejected by the Seventy-sixth Division and the other organizations in the cantonment.

Reports of friction in one company of the 301st Ammunition Train have been followed by the transfer of Private Fred J. (Brick) Wilder of Maynard, the former Red Sox catcher, who is now a member of C Company, 302rd Infantry. As a result, Wilder has been separated from his former comrades and is no longer a member of the crack Ammunition Train baseball team, which just won the cantonment championship without suffering a defeat.

Six more enlisted men have been commissioned as second lieutenants. They are Regimental Supply Sergeant Warren A. McInnis of Jamaica Plain, Company A, 301st Infantry; Sergeant Richard F. Paul of Hartford, Ct., Company D, 301st Infantry; Sergeant Walter B. Boewe of Taunton, Company E, 301st Infantry; Sergeant Winfield Harold Boardman of Morrisville, N. Y., Company H, 301st Infantry; Regimental Sergeant-Major Gardiner Trowbridge of South Norwalk, Ct., Company L, 304th Infantry, and Battalion Sergeant-Major Gardner Catlin of Waterbury, Ct., Company C, 304th Infantry.

Twelve more of the enlisted men who passed the preliminary examination for quartermaster corps commissions have been sent to the quartermaster officers' training camp at Camp Joseph E. Johnston at Jacksonville, Fla.

The candidates include Corporal Frank J. Sweeney of Somerville, 108th company, depot brigade; Corporal Roland D. Stearns of Brookline, headquarters company, 301st infantry; Corporal Frank W. Murphy of Watertown, battery A, 301st field artillery; Battalion Sergeant Major Glen Underwood of Gardner, headquarters detachment, depot brigade; Sergeant William J. Nixon of East Rochester, N. H., headquarters company, 301st infantry; Sergeant Lester H. Carter of Gardner, company A, 301st headquarters trains and military police battalion; Sergeant Major Alfred G. Jackson of New Haven, Ct., headquarters detachment, third battalion depot brigade.

Battalion Sergeant Major Harold H. Kendall of East Longmeadow, headquarters detachment, depot brigade; Sergeant Arthur G. Marsden of Lawrence, 23rd company, depot brigade; Private, first class, Maus S. Wheelwright of Bristol, R. I., fourth officers training camp; Private, first class, Wentworth L. Fay of Burke, N. Y., 302d infantry, and Sergeant James C. McDonald of Fall River, company C, 317th field signal battalion.

EDITORIAL

This war is teaching thousands of soldiers and sailors how to keep a secret, for they know what it means to the safety of their comrades and themselves. In spite of the valiant service rendered by the secret service and other government agents, enemy influence is constantly seeking military information that may be used to advantage against the men in the service.

Relatives and friends of men in uniform having access to confidential sources are the greatest prey of the enemy agents. It is largely through apparently innocent conversations with friends or strangers that valuable information is betrayed. These conversations are repeated and incidents discussed too often find the way into the enemy's web. Any soldier or sailor who reveals confidential information to anyone other than the proper authorities is a traitor to his country, and the blood of whole divisions of loyal men in the service may be upon his head.

Every man in uniform should bear this in mind—Keep your mouth shut.

LIEUT. CARLTON IS POPULAR WITH MEN

Has Filled Difficult Berth on Receiving Ship for More Than Year

By S. HARRY FERRIS.

Aboard the Receiving Ship at Boston, June 27.—In any balloting to select the most popular officer on the ship there can be little doubt that next to the one of the captain at the top of the list would be that of Lieutenant F. G. Carlton.

Mr. Carlton has filled the difficult position of executive officer of the ship for over a year. The duties of the place are manifold and call for well-balanced judgment and a lot of hard work. The executive officer comes into very intimate contact with most of the enlisted men and is often called upon to adjudicate differences and settle matters of discipline. It is a tribute to the efficiency of Lieutenant Carlton that the sailors almost to a man say he is "square."

If there was any doubt as to the desire of the sailors on the ship to get into active service at sea, where there will be at least some prospect of their getting a crack at the Huns, it would be dispelled by the behavior of the men when the rumor of a draft for duty on a destroyer or battleship passes around on board.

There is always an immediate rush to the detail office, and the men climb over each other in their ambition to have their names put on the list of those who want to go to sea.

There is a lot of fault-finding among the boys over the way in which some petty profiteers on shore take advantage of the men in uniform. They say that whenever a sailor turns up at the places of business of some of these alleged sharks, it is a signal for a general jacking-up of prices.

Many of the boys on the ship are from the West and South and are not familiar with the prices commonly charged in Boston. It is easy, therefore, for dealers to add an extra 25 or 50 per cent. profit.

When a sailor asks for some ice cream he is charged 15 cents for the quantity that would be given to a civilian for 5 cents, it is asserted. Cigarettes frequently double in price when a sailor asks for them, and candy enough for two when a tar wishes to purchase some for himself and sweetheart calls for the income of a multi-millionaire.

SOLDIER SAYS POLICE OFFICER REVILED HIM

Worcester, June 27. — A Camp Devens soldier who spoke but little English, came to State Guard headquarters here to lodge complaint against a Worcester patrolman, who, he said, had called him an "army man" with various embellishments. The soldier's knowledge of English was so vague, however, that the State guardsmen were unable to learn much about the affair.

SMALLPOX FISHING BOAT QUARANTINED AT NEWPORT

The "smallpox ship" of the fishing fleet, the steamer Nirvana, for which Boston authorities were watching, has been placed in quarantine at Newport, R. I. Captain Earl Murray of Gloucester and his crew have been vaccinated. Their catch of mackeral, valued at thousands of dollars, cannot be landed under the quarantine regulations. It will probably be dumped at sea.

Search for the boat has been conducted since recently when she put into Vineyard Haven. There George Clifford, one of the crew, was put ashore. He was thought to be ill with chicken pox. It developed that he was suffering from smallpox.

The picture of former Lieutenant-Governor Louis A. Frothingham, printed in the AMERICAN yesterday, was a copyright photograph made by Notman. Through an oversight this was not mentioned when the picture was printed.

Viereck Won't Deny He Is a Cousin of the Kaiser

Found at last!

A man in this country who failed to have a convulsion when taxed with being a relative of the Kaiser.

He is George Sylvester Viereck of New York, who published The Fatherland and who is a charter member of The Poetry Society of America.

Viereck has never taken the trouble to deny a statement that he was the Kaiser's cousin. This developed in Manhattan dispatches today which said that the Poetry Society's executive committee sought to have him resign from the metrical organization. The dispatches included the following talk with Viereck:

"Did you ever nedy a statement published on June 29, 1907, that you are a grandson of the German Emperor, William the Great, and therefore a cousin of the present Kaiser?"

"I never denied it."

"Did you ever boast of it, as contended in the literature sent out by the Vigilantes?"

"No, I never boasted of it. I never said it was true and I never said it was untrue."

Public Should Give Street Railway Trustees Help and Confidence

The Governor has appointed a well balanced and able Board of Trustees to control the Boston Elevated Railway for the public.

Now that the control of the road passes entirely into the hands of the public through their sworn representatives, Messrs. Louis A. Frothingham, Galen L. Stone, William M. Butler, John F. Stevens and Stanley R. Miller, the people of the Metropolitan District ought to make a high resolve to give these gentlemen, their representatives, as much fair weather as it is possible for them to be given.

The public begins the operation of the road through these trustees at a very difficult time, when labor is scarce and high, when materials are still more scarce and still higher, when the value of the nickel is constantly going down, and when everything that enters into the cost of transportation is going up. Under the old regime the Elevated Railway has been constantly deteriorating, both in service and in equipment. The cars were getting older and older and more and more inefficient. The youth of the system has not been maintained. New cars and new rails have not been supplied as the cars and rails wore out. The system has not expanded in harmony with the movement of the population.

The first thing that the trustees, of course, will attempt to do will be to improve the service. This will require a great expenditure of money, and will, therefore, require a great increase in the income of the road. To obtain a great increase in the income, the car fares must be raised. This the people of Boston and the Metropolitan District understand, of course. But there is a great difference between raising the fares when the road is controlled by the public and raising the fares when the road is controlled by private managers—when the road is controlled by the public the increase of fare goes entirely to the public, when the road is controlled by private managers nobody knows where the increase of fare is likely to go.

It is a first principle of good business that money should be spent to obtain modern equipment in order that business may be done cheaply. In the Middle West they have managed their street railways very much more progressively than they have been managed in the East. It is well known that the street railway experts of the Middle West consider our street railway equipment here quite obsolete and wastefully expensive in operation. Therefore, the public trustees will raise money to re-equip the Elevated so that it may be operated more efficiently and less expensively. The public trustees will undoubtedly give their early attention to the congestion at Park street and at Dudley street. The conditions at those two terminals are absolutely inexcusable. A little engineering intelligence will promptly cure them.

These trustees are men of standing and self-respect. They are taking their oaths of office, solemnly swearing before God to carry out their public trust faithfully and well at a time when men are dying by the thousands for the public weal. The AMERICAN trusts them and pledges its hearty support and co-operation to the work of the new trustees, and wishes them godspeed in a very great and important experiment. We have no doubt that the public will echo this sentiment.

Hollis Should Accept Second Term in U. S. Senate

New Hampshire Statesman Found Courageously on Democratic and Progressive Side of Every National Question.

New Hampshire, New England and the United States of America will suffer a great loss if Senator Henry F. Hollis continues to decline a second term in the United States Senate.

As a constructive statesman, few men in this country have at any time done as much in so short a time as Senator Hollis. Men who have passed a generation in the United States Senate and who have enjoyed the reputation of being great statesmen have not done as much in their whole long careers for the advancement of the nation's well being as Henry F. Hollis contributed in his authorship and promotion of the Rural Credit Act. Moreover, Senator Hollis has been found courageously and intelligently on the progressive, democratic side of every question which has arisen in the United States Senate. The United States Senate is the most powerful small legislative body in the world. The right man in so strong a place is of the utmost importance to the welfare of the nation.

In the great renaissance of New Hampshire during the last few years she did nothing so important as to elect Senator Hollis and to contribute his services to the great work of building and advancing the national interest.

Senator Hollis is a poor man, of course, nor would his character and principles permit him to utilize his influence to advance his private fortune, but the day is passing when men will find it necessary in order to preserve their power and standing in the community to have accumulated great personal wealth. More and more, honorable poverty is growing not only to be consistent with personal interest, but with social and political credit. Those gloomy days of twenty years ago, when all a man needed in order to be considered a great man was to accumulate a vast private fortune without any consideration whatever of the means by which it was accumulated, have gone by, as good men hope, forever in this country.

We are waging the first war in the history of the world, probably, in which absolutely altruistic motives actuate us and we are waging the first war since the Revolution in which the great burden is not placed upon the poor, and in which the men of large means are made to approach, at least, the payment of their fair share of the war's burdens.

These are great days in the world. The old face of things is changing. The corruptions of our economic and social life are being destroyed by the white heat of this great and exacting struggle, because corruption is inefficient and deadly to a good cause.

The AMERICAN and all the progressive men of New England and of the nation most earnestly hope that Senator Hollis will reconsider his determination not again to be a candidate for the Senate. It is too bad that the State and the Nation should be deprived of the service of so good a man for a reason so trifling as his own personal inclinations.

Get Out of My Alps . . . By T. E. Powers

Let the Democratic United States Senate Do Its Democratic Duty

The passage of the Constitutional Amendment to give the women of America equal suffrage with men is now dependent entirely upon the action of the representatives of the Democratic party in the United States Senate.

To that party will be the credit and the benefit if the amendment is adopted; to that party will be the odium and the injury if the amendment is rejected.

The Democratic Lower House passed the amendment. The President of the United States has ardently and patriotically advised the Senate to pass the amendment and has urged the recognition of women's equal political rights with men throughout the world.

President Wilson's words have a great deal of weight in every country in the world today and will influence the cause of woman suffrage advantageously everywhere.

Surely it shall not be said that our great President had not sufficient influence in his own country and with his own party to secure the recognition of women's equal political privileges, which is so obviously right and just.

If the Democrats, who have full control of the Senate of the United States, should allow this woman suffrage amendment to be beaten through a lack of Democratic votes in its support, the discredit and disaster incidental to such an act will fall upon the Democratic party, AND SHOULD FALL UPON IT.

There are hundreds of thousands of women voters in the various States in the Union, and one of the most important political measures in their eyes is the passage of the woman suffrage amendment giving to their sisters in other States the rights which they themselves now enjoy.

It behooves every loyal Democrat, therefore, throughout the nation, to write or telegraph his Senator in Washington not to bring odium upon the Democratic party, not to put obstacles in the way of Democratic success everywhere, not to embarrass our administration in time of war and affront our far-seeing and devoted President by flying in the face of the sentiment of the intelligent people of this country, and directly opposing the expressed hope and desire of the President of the United States.

And should the Democratic Senators affront this powerful woman's vote by action as ignorant and bigoted as it is injudicious, these intelligent and patriotic women voters will penalize the Democratic party not only in the matter of candidates for the Senate of the United States, where the penalty would deservedly fall, but in the matter of candidates for other offices, State and National; for the resentment of these earnest women will be felt not only against the individual Senators responsible for so unjust an act, but against the whole Democratic party everywhere.

Gentlemen of the Democratic majority of the United States Senate, confer credit upon yourselves and upon your country by passing this woman suffrage amendment today.

And when a good deed is to be done, do not do it in a half-hearted and reluctant manner. Pass this woman suffrage amendment by an overwhelming majority, and receive the thanks and applause not only of all the loyal women of America but of all the liberal-minded men as well.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

ALL ABOARD! WE ARE ALL GOING—BUT WHERE?

By Winifred Black

ALL ABOARD! cried the conductor, and all aboard it was.

The man in the wrinkled overcoat grabbed a handful of bananas and ran toward the car; the woman at the telegraph window threw down the pencil and hurried back to the train; the little boy with the big round eyes and the little girl with the tight little braids, sticking out like pigtails under her queer little hood, toddled solemnly toward the track. The pretty girl looked prettier than ever and raised her veil of soft illusion for one last, unveiled look at the man she loved who was leaving her, perhaps forever.

Mother stood over in the corner of the railway station, crying quite frankly. She couldn't bear to go out to the train and hear the boys sing, "Where Do We Go From, Here, Boys, Oh, Where Do We Go From Here?" But father stood stolidly alongside the car and grinned amiably through the window at his first-born. If you looked very closely at him, you noticed that something queer was happening in his throat and that there was a strained look about his mouth, but he didn't say a word; and when the train pulled out he stood there as motionless as a statue.

Every One Wants to Go

All aboard! The painted woman took out her handbag and put on another coat of paint; the cigarette smoker took out a cigarette case and lit and puffed and drew a deep breath of satisfaction; the anxious man tore open a telegram and looked more anxious than ever; the woman with the baby sighed and looked out of the window and tried to see how many miles it was to the place where she was going.

All aboard! The little station began to disappear, the green fields spun by. Good-by, old house there on the hill. How much love and how much bitterness your roof has sheltered. I shall never see you again. I wonder what kind of a house I shall live in at the place where I am going?

There's the school yard, and the children all out there already. It must be recess time. See, they are waving! Let's wave back to them again. How wonderful they think it is to get on to a train and go faster and faster and faster—away and away into a brand new world with brand new people and brand new clothes and different streets, and nobody that is mad at you for what you did yesterday; and nobody that likes you for the way you acted the day before; all new, all new and strange.

All Aboard—for Where?

How they would like to run after the train and jump aboard! The little fellow there on the fence; he's waving the hardest of all. I wonder if he will travel far in his life. There's something in his black eyes that seems to say he will.

The stolid little girl by the steps there—will some freak of fortune whisk her into the midst of a whirlpool and take the stolid satisfaction out of her countenance for always, or will she just marry the boy who sits next to her in school, and rent the house next to her aunt's, join the Ladies' Aid Society and sing in the choir and never know any flowers in any garden but the lilacs and snowballs and the dahlias her mother helped her to plant?

All aboard! We are gone. The village, the old house, the school yard, the farm with the whispering willows by the gate, the well there in the shade. Well, Chanticleer, what are you so excited about? There is no use for you to crow—you are not going with us, no matter how much fuss you make.

All aboard! Youth and beauty, old age and weariness, middle-age and disillusion, all aboard for where?

"American Families"

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Enclosed please find an advertisement in a Boston newspaper for rooms to let to "American families." As I was born in Boston, I applied for the rooms, but was refused them as they objected to Jews.

It would interest me very much to find, in these stirring times, just what is an "American family."

ROTATING EARTH GIVES BIG MENTAL STIMULUS

By Garrett P. Serviss

HERE is a question worth answering, because it contains the germ of an error that, in various forms, puzzles many thousands of otherwise well educated persons. It is asked by a railroad man:

"As I was reading your article in the Boston American, May 10, on time-keeping I thought of something that I can't make out. You say the earth's motion" (of rotation in the latitude of New York) "is 13 miles a minute, or 780 miles an hour. Now, if an aviator flies 130 miles an hour in an opposite direction to the earth's motion in one hour he will be 130 miles from his starting point. Then, if he wants to fly back, he will first have to make the 130 miles, and then, if I understand it, will also have to make the 780 miles that the earth moved while he was in the air."

The fallacy of this statement lies in the assumption that an aviator in the air does not share in the rotational motion of the earth. As a matter of fact he does share in that motion, just as he did before leaving the ground, except that, if his course is westward (the earth turning eastward), his hourly progress must be deducted from the distance travelled by the earth's surface in that time.

Fallacy Is Explained

Thus, if he flies westward 130 miles in an hour, while the point from which he set out is carried by the earth's rotation 780 miles eastward, the distance that he will have moved eastward (not with reference to the earth's surface, but with reference to motionless space) will be 780 minus 130, or 650 miles. But the sole motion of which he is conscious is that of his machine travelling the 130 miles westward with reference to the air around him and the ground beneath him. Only celestial observations can reveal the other motion. And when he turns to go back again the only distance he has to make in order to reach his starting point is that same space of 130 miles.

If his machine could fly 780 miles an hour westward, then it would completely annul the eastward motion due to the earth's rotation, and, with reference to space, it would be as if he remained motionless while the earth turned under him. If he started at night, with a certain star over his head, it would continue to be night for him and that star would remain over his head as long as he kept going.

In order mentally to visualize this, imagine yourself on the top of a train of cars a mile long, running on a straight track, with a uniform speed of 60 miles an hour. If you could run 30 miles an hour backward over the roofs of the cars your actual forward speed with the train would be reduced to 30 miles, and if you increased your running to 60 miles an hour you would neutralize your forward motion due to the train, and, with reference to the track beneath, would not change your place at all, so that when you fell off the rear end of the last car you would strike the same ties that were under you when you started to run backward one minute before.

In this case the railroad track, or the ground, represents the motionless space that serves for a background of reference when the question relates to the rotation of the earth.

What Makes Air Rotate

It is not the air moving with the earth that sweeps the aviator along in the direction of the earth's rotation, but it is the momentum which he has acquired from sharing in the rotation at the surface. Nothing can destroy that momentum except an opposed resistance, and, the air being already in rotational motion, there is no such resistance.

It is not likely that there ever was a time when the atmosphere did not rotate synchronously with the earth. It was no doubt formed at the same time as the earth and out of the same store of materials. The movement of rotation was imparted to the entire mass, both the solid or liquid and the gaseous portions.
